BIRMINGHAM (Ala.) Nov. 10.—A committee of thirteen negro ministers, appointed by 4000 members of the International Migration Society, to go to Africa to rearrange for the colonization of the negroes of the South to that country, left here yesterday for Liberia. The President of Liberia has promised the colonists land and farming implements and the advance guard goes to make final arrangements for 4000 more of their race, who will sail in special steamers, chartered by the society, from New Orleans, Mobile, Savannah and Charleston, during the coming winter.

The first cargo of 500 leaves early in December. The Liberian Congress will welcome them, and the President of that country has written letters to the promoters of the scheme to encourage emigration.

AN UNKNOWN REGION.

Associated Press London—wire Service.
LONDON, Nov. 10.—(By Atlantic Cable.) The first news from the scientific expedition, headed by Dr. Donaldson Smith of Philadelphia, which started in June last to explore the unknown region between two hundred miles west of Berber, the chief town of that portion of Africa, and Lake Rudolf, where traces of civilization are believed to exist, have been received here. Dr. Smith, it appears, accompanied by two Englishmen, early in September, reached a large stream, believed to be the Nile, and discovered the unknown country west of M'Elmal, and surveyed several rivers. All the members of the party are in good health.

BISHOP MATZ.
He Resigns Because He was Beaten by Difficulties.
Associated Press London—wire Service.
DUBLIN, Nov. 10.—Bishop Matz has declined to make any statement for publication regarding his resignation, but it is generally understood that the reason for his almost unprecedented action was his inability to cope with the difficulties that beset him.

It is expected that Archbishop Chappelle of Santa Fe, N. M., will be named as administrator of the affairs of the diocese pending the selection of a successor to Bishop Matz. It is rumored in Catholic circles that Denver will probably be replaced by an archbishop and Archbishop Chappelle will be located here.

SIOUX CITY (Iowa), Nov. 10.—John Foley, a janitor, made application to join a local lodge of the A.O.U.W., but at the initiation last night he refused to be blindfolded, saying he had been mistreated once before, and did not propose to have it occur again. He finally consented and when the bandage was on, whipped out a revolver and discharged it recklessly. He was caught before anyone was harmed and the revolver wrested from him and he was thrown into the street. He will not become a member of the order.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 10, 1 p.m.—The only California returns received here today, up to this hour, are some corrected figures from Riverside and Alameda counties, which, in the case of Riverside, show a gain of seventeen votes for Budd, and in the case of Alameda a loss of forty-four votes for Budd. In addition to these, the returns from seventeen additional precincts in Stanislaus county have just been received, which, while they show a plurality of 124 for Estee, really represent a gain of forty-six for Budd, as the returns from Stanislaus received previously gave Estee a plurality of 170.

The following is a glance at this hour.
In San Francisco, the figures received from 2014 precincts in the State, in a total of 2274 precincts, give Budd 104,116, Estee 103,519, Budd's plurality 597. This is a gain of thirteen votes for Budd since the last tabulation was made last night. This is based upon a plurality of 11,226 for Budd in San Francisco, these figures having been generally accepted for several days past, though the Democratic State Central Committee now claims that Budd's plurality in this city will exceed these figures by about seven hundred, with two Democratic precincts in the city to hear from.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 10, 1:15 p.m.
Complete returns from 2014 precincts in California, in a total of 2274 precincts, give Budd 104,116, Estee 103,519, Budd's plurality 597. This is based upon a plurality of 11,226 for Budd in San Francisco.
The latest returns from the Registrar's office today, give Budd a plurality of 11, 464, with two precincts, which have heretofore given Democratic pluralities, to hear from.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 10, 3 p.m.
Ten additional precincts from Santa Clara county, just received, show a gain of 88 votes for Estee, and give Budd a plurality of 709 votes in the 2024 precincts in the State which have been heard from. If Budd's plurality in this city is reckoned at 11,464, as reported from the Registrar's office today, Budd's net plurality at the present time is 937.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 10, 3:15 p.m.
Complete returns of Contra Costa county just received show that Estee's plurality there is 317. This increases the number of precincts heard from to 2036, and, counting Budd's plurality in San Francisco at 11,464, it shows the following result: Budd 105,
207, Estee 104,609; Budd's plurality, 698.
There are still 238 precincts in the State to hear from.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 10, 5:45 p.m.
Complete returns from 2045 precincts in California in a total of 2274 precincts, give Budd 105,444, Estee 104,872; Budd's plurality, 572. These figures are based upon a plurality of 11,226 for Budd in San Francisco, as collected by the local press bureau, and used by the Associated Press in compiling its tables.

If Budd's plurality in this city is reckoned at 11,464, with two Democratic precincts to hear from, as reported from the Registrar's office today, his net plurality at the present time is 800.

The Democratic State Committee claims that Budd's plurality in San Francisco including the missing precincts, is 11,703.
If this claim is correct, then Budd's net plurality in the State at large at this hour is 1003.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 10, 7:30 p.m.
Two thousand and sixty-three precincts in a total of 2274 precincts in California give Budd 105,730, Estee 105,246; Budd's plurality, 584.

Reckoned upon the claims of the Democratic Central Committee that Budd's plurality in San Francisco will be 11,703, his net plurality now is 1011, with 211 precincts in the State to hear from.

A GAIN FOR BUDD.
SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 10, 9 p.m.
Twelve additional precincts from Stanislaus and Modoc counties just received give Budd a gain of 100. The count now stands: Two thousand and seventy-five precincts in the State give Budd 105,730, Estee 105,575; Budd's plurality, 684. There

THE SITUATION IN CHINA.

He is Wanted to Stop Bullets.

China is After Him for a Shield.

Negotiations Looking to the Estab- lishment of Peace in the East.

The Hostile Nations are Expected to Lay Down Their Arms if Ja- pan is Moderate in Her Demands.

Associated Press London—wire Service.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 10.—The events of the last few days in which the officials and diplomats of Washington have participated, lead them to believe that peace between China and Japan may be concluded at an early day. China has at last reluctantly, but very fully, admitted that she found herself wholly unprepared for war.
Japan, on the other hand, smilingly accepts this acknowledgement of her progress and awaits a detailed proposition as to how the contest can be conducted as a basis of peace. It remains to be seen whether Japan will demand too much or China yield too little, but the inclination of both powers is strongly toward getting together.

It is believed the peace will be effected on a basis of Korea's independence and a cash indemnity for Japan's war expenditures. If, however, Japan urges her demands to the extent of the cession of a part of China's territory, the prospect is that China will not humble her pride to this extent, but will continue to proceed the war as best she can, relying on the bitter winter now at hand to give her a temporary respite and defense.

The foregoing briefly summarizes the situation as viewed by officials here, who recently had most to do with the subject. At the outset, Great Britain besought the United States and the Great powers of Europe to intervene. The facts of these negotiations at Washington have not until now been made known.
Cable directions from the London
Foreign Office came to Gen. Sir
British charge d'Affaires in the person of Sir Julian Pauncefote, who was at the time in the vicinity of New London. He arrived September
25 and remained two days. He saw Secretary Gresham in person and represented Great Britain's proposition that the United States co-operate with the other powers toward peace. The reply was duly given that this country
would not co-operate, on the ground, it is said, that the policy of the United States was to avoid involving foreign alliances on questions in which it had no immediate concern. Since that time no efforts on the part of Great Britain to urge negotiations have been made, as far as known.

Under the circumstances, the present negotiations are viewed by foreign interests as a mutual arrangement between China and Japan, to which the foreign powers will give their moral support. It makes little difference there what the United States and other powers do so long as China and Japan come to terms, although both powers seem to be anxious to have the co-operation of this country and the others in the negotiations. The Chinese Minister had a long conference with Secretary Gresham yesterday morning. This was one of several conferences held in recent days. It is said, however, the main proposition on the part of China comes direct from United States Minister Denby at Peking.

WHAT THE OFFICIALS SAY.
WASHINGTON, Nov. 10.—As a result of the negotiations now pending, it is confidently believed that the United States will very soon be asked to arbitrate between Japan and China with a view to permanent peace on a basis satisfactory to both countries. It can be stated positively that the United States has declined to join heretofore with European powers in any arbitrary intervention to force a settlement, but while unwilling to act in an arbitrary manner, either individually or jointly with European nations, the representatives to the war have been given to understand that the good offices of this government would be gladly exercised to secure peace in case such is the expressed wish. Naturally Japan insists that China shall take the initiative in any negotiations looking to a restoration of peace, but that she is entirely willing to accede to any reasonable proposition is not doubted.

From the beginning of hostilities the Chinese have been anxious to have the United States arbitrate the difference between themselves and the Japanese,
which led to the war, but, of course, there could be no arbitration except upon the request of both parties, and that was lacking. But after the battles of Kiu-Lien-Chang on October 23, last, when the Chinese suffered their severe defeat at the hands of the Japanese troops, who crossed the Ya-Loo River, and were obliged to retreat toward Moukden, they became thoroughly convinced that something must be done to terminate the war. They could not, however, so humble their pride as to sue for peace directly to Japan, but casting about for some means of opening peace negotiations, they hit upon the treaty with the United States of 1848.

The first article of this treaty pledges
the United States, in case China is oppressively or unjustly treated by another power, to use its good offices to arrange the difficulty. It is similar in scope to the first article in our treaty with Korea, which led Secretary Gresham, at the beginning of the trouble, to write a note to the United States Minister at Tokyo relative to the Japanese occupation of Korea, which has excited so much comment. Encouraged by the attitude of the majority of two, and the Democrats will have two majorities in the Council. The Populists carried only one county.

EASTERN STATES.
TENNESSEE NOW APPEARS TO BE REPUBLICAN.
Democrats Practically Concede that Evans is Elected—The Next Session of Congress—A New Silver Party.

Associated Press London—wire Service.
WASHINGTON, Nov. 10.—The approaching session of Congress which will commence on December 5, is not expected by those familiar with Congressional methods, to be one of great activity or productive of much legislation. The fact that it will be the last session of the Congress and that it so closely follows a general election are all considered as indications that comparatively little work will be attempted, and still less accomplished.

The greater part of the session will, in all probability be confined to an exchange of bills and the results of the election and the session will be a general able more on account of talk than work.
It is probable that next to nothing will be done from the Christmas holidays and predictions are freely made that it will be difficult to obtain a quorum previous to Christmas. After the holidays, there will be but two months left for work and speech-making.

It will be, of course, necessary to pass the usual appropriations. These bills touch a variety of interests and while on this occasion they will be taken up with considerable alacrity, they can always be so manipulated as to kill much time when there is any considerable element which desires to rouse them.
When the last session adjourned, the supplemental tariff or free ray material bill. They had passed the House and had been favorably reported with material amendments by the Senate committee on Finance to the Senate. While a majority of the Democrats appeared friendly to these bills, there was a considerable element in the party opposed to their consideration, as were practically all the Republican Senators. This sentiment was able to prevent the Senate's action on the bill and the session was adjourned. It remains to be seen whether the friends of the bill will persist in this policy at the forthcoming session and whether the opponents of the bill will succeed in the face of the opposition of a few Democratic Senators and the almost solid Republican side of the Senate who are not at all in favor of time further legislation in the direction of tariff reduction.

Representatives of the latter class do not hesitate to declare that whatever the policy of the Democratic majority, they will be able to prevent serious consideration of the bill because of the short session. They also claim that if a vote should be reached there would be a majority against them. It should be stated, however, that there is a division of opinion among the Democrats as to the free ray bill, and that some Republicans and some conservative Democrats have expressed a willingness to allow this bill to become a law, but the last indications are that the vote of the bill will be determined by that of the others of the same class.

There are also those who predict that there will be a renewal of the agitation of the financial question or propositions for another bond issue. The starting of the bond question will depend upon the action of the House. Both men are charged with felony for violating the registration law.

Cohen refused to answer any questions and was promptly committed to jail by the court. The bond of Sternberger was not found and both were ordered to jail by Judge Wallace, to be confined there until the document is found.

Louis Cohen, the obstinate witness in the "stuffer" cases, who refused to answer questions, and was sent to jail for contempt by Judge Wallace, has been released by the Supreme Court on a writ of habeas corpus. The writ is made returnable in Sacramento next Wednesday.

cratic headquarters the election of Caldron

the subject. At the outset, Great

negotiations at Washington have not
until now been made known.
Cable directions from the London
Foreign Office came to Gen. Sir
British charge d'Affaires in the person of Sir Julian Pauncefote, who was at the time in the vicinity of New London. He arrived September
25 and remained two days. He saw
Secretary Gresham in person and represented Great Britain's proposition that
the United States co-operate with the other powers toward peace. The reply
was duly given that this country

United States at that time, the Chinese government appealed to United States Minister Denby, at Peking, to cause his government to intervene. Mr. Denby transmitted the application to Washington, where it was laid before the President, and to Mr. Denby's representatives, in the case of the occupation of Korea, had little effect, there was no reason to suppose that a different result would be achieved by an attempt to use good offices in favor of China.

As already indicated, our government was disappointed in its efforts with the European nations in any effort to coerce either party to the war, and for this very reason, this country was an independent intervening power. Both China and Japan were assured that we were free from any suspicion of a desire to secure possession of territory in Asia, which hung over the great European powers, and their confidence in our firmness and impartiality was strikingly manifested by both nations to care for their subjects in the other territories. The United States is at the present time placed in a position where it would naturally be expected to be by both China and Japan to serve as an arbitrator, in case of a difficulty, in arranging terms of peace, and it is therefore very probable that we will forfeit this position by yielding now to China's request to intervene.

A department official said today: "Arbitration may, but intervene we cannot, is the manner in which the situation is summarized in official circles here. If the Chinese government will propose to the States to present peace proposals to Japan this may be done through Minister Denby, but it is felt here that the better way would be for China to make the proposal directly to Japan when it would be entirely within the bounds of propriety for the United States to express the gratification it would feel as a nation friendly to both combatants in a peace restored on honorable terms. An official of the State Department conversant with the Chinese attitude says:

"China no longer conceals her inability to prosecute a war. She recognizes that she was caught unprepared and that it is the part of wisdom for her to make the most of a bad situation by getting peace on the best terms possible. She does this with the expectation and assurance that Japan will come half way. Japan began the war for the purpose of securing Korea's complete sovereignty. This China will fully concede. It is also probable that China will pay a fair indemnity. This, however, will be in cash and not in Chinese territory, as I do not think any peace can be arranged which will permit Japan to occupy a part of Chinese territory."

Another department official presented the Japanese views of the present negotiations as follows: Japan recognizes that she is not likely to win the war, and any empty offers of peace on terms which seem to mean much and in truth mean nothing. The sovereignty of Korea is one of those empty positions and China has nothing to concede as to that country. Neither does Japan want any Chinese territory, not even the island of Formosa, which is really an extension of the Japanese group. What she will demand undoubtedly is a cash indemnity sufficient to recoup her for her war expenditures and the humbling of China will give the full fruits of victory."

THE STORY OF LI HUNG CHANG'S FALL.

NEW YORK, Nov. 10.—A peculiar story concerning Li Hung Chang, the late Chinese general, is recounted in a private letter from China. It appears that the inquiry instituted by the Emperor and which is still in progress, relative to the manner in which the Chinese general was killed, has come to the point that the Japanese were ever permitted to gain a foothold in Korea, has brought to light the following facts:

Marquis Li, eldest son of the Viceroy, when Minister to the Court of Japan, a few years ago, lent the Mikado with whom he was on intimate terms, the sum of $250,000. The loan was not to bear interest and no date was fixed for its reimbursement. When Marquis Li realized that hostilities between the two countries were inevitable, he fled to Tokyo and asked a friend of the Mikado to return the money before he fled. He and the Mikado promised that the money would be returned. The great Li family did their utmost to prevent the Emperor and the government from getting wind of the loan, and the Viceroy tried to retrieve his son's loss at the expense of the national defenses. Had the Chinese been victorious in Korea, nothing would have been said about the matter. Fate, however, willed otherwise, and not only Li Hung Chang but the whole Li family may lose their heads in consequence.

A USELESS WARSHIP. PANAMA, Nov. 10.—It is stated that the cruiser Esmeralda, for the purchase of which Japan has been negotiating, is useless as a fighting vessel. Her boilers are reported in bad condition and her armament is too heavy, which is a hindrance to the heavy maximum charge of solid shot, and an engagement would tear up her decks.

DYNAMITER MOORE. WASHINGTON, Nov. 10.—The Chinese Minister here has conferred with Secretary Gresham as to what can be done for the relief of Moore, formerly interpreter of the legation at Seoul, who was killed in Japan. The Minister has no direct interest in Moore, except as a friend, and it is claimed that he acted on his own responsibility. Wide and Cameron, who were arrested with Moore, first wrote to the Chinese Minister, offering their dynamite torpedoes. The Minister made no attention to the letter. Then, it is said, Moore took up the subject of his own account, and without authority from the Minister of China. Now that he is in prison, however, the Minister wishes to help him in any way he possibly can. The conference with Secretary Gresham has not resulted in any definite step, as advice from the United States Consul at Yokohama are awaited.

THE YORKTOWN OFF TO THE ORIENT. VALLEJO, Nov. 10.—The United States gunboat Yorktown, the navy yard at 10:15 o'clock this morning for China, stopping at Honolulu for coal. She is expected to be four weeks in making the trip to Yokohama. As the ship is bound for the bay a band from the ship played "Should Auld Acquaintance Be Forgotten," and the crews from all the ships in the harbor cheered and waved their caps.

DIPLOMATIC QUESTIONS. HEROSHIMO (Japan), Nov. 10.—The Cabinet ministers discussed important questions, including great diplomatic questions. No official report of the occupation of Kin-Chow has yet been received here, although it is supposed that the army is in the possession of the second Japanese army. The Chinese telegraph line, from Port Arthur to Tientsin, via Kin-Chow, has been cut, and the order of the Japanese commander is THE SECOND REPORT OF THE KIND.

LONDON, Nov. 10.—A dispatch to the Pall Mall Gazette from Chee Foo says that the Japanese have captured Port Arthur.

Tobacco Dealers Assail. PORTLAND (Or.), Nov. 10.—Several tobacco dealers in this city and Tacoma, Wash., are assailing the prohibitionists.

FOUND BOTTOM UP.

The Missing Schooner Leads Probably Lost.

The Wreck Seen Floating off Umpqua Bar Thought to be that of the Vessel.

The Blythe Estate Compromises a Claim—Boys Arrested for Attempted Train-Wrecking. Worden to Confess.

Associated Press Special Service. PORTLAND (Or.), Nov. 10.—Advises from Marshfield, Or., say that the vessel which was sighted bottom up off Umpqua bar, a few days ago, is believed to be the schooner Leads, which is overdue at Umpqua from California ports. The lifeboat men who went out to the wreck think the vessel's bottom corresponds to that of the Leads, which had been converted from a center-board schooner to a keel boat. Whatever may have been the name of the craft, it is almost certain that the crew is lost.

FROM VENTURA. VENTURA, Nov. 10.—The schooner Leads left here October 20, in ballast. Her crew consisted of the captain, two mates, cook and four seamen.

MERCURY'S TRANSIT. The Event is Noted by Prof. Swift on Echo Mountain.

PASADENA, Nov. 10.—The transit of Mercury was observed today at Lowe Observatory, Echo Mountain, by Dr. Lewis Swift and his son, Edward, with the six-inch telescope at a power of 200 diameters. Success was attained in all four contacts. Not a cloud was visible. No portion of the planet was visible off the sun's disc and while on the planet could be seen by closest scrutiny. The black drop interfered with the exact determination of the time of contacts, which differs somewhat from computations made further north.

AT THE NAVAL OBSERVATORY. WASHINGTON, Nov. 10.—The transit of Mercury was observed at the Naval Observatory today under the direction of Prof. William Harkness. The first and second contacts were observed most satisfactorily, but because of clouds, the third and fourth, no observations could be made.

LAST OF THE TRIO. John Calver, Like His Fellow-prosecutors Died Suddenly.

Associated Press Special Service. SPOKANE, Nov. 10.—John Calver died at Bonners Ferry today from a gunshot wound received while hunting. He was shot in the chest by a bullet from a .38 Smith & Wesson revolver. He was a member of a trio, of which Calver was a member. Early in the year one of the partners was killed by a snowslide, a few months ago the second was blown to pieces by a blast in a prospect hole.

YOUNG RASCALS. Three Boys Arrested at Woodland for Attempted Train-Wrecking.

Associated Press Special Service. WOODLAND, Nov. 10.—Three boys, Stephen Miller, Kent Thompson and Nelson Brown, have been arrested for attempted train-wrecking. They put broken coupling links on the track near Davisville, but they may not mean any harm, and had no intention of derailing the train.

A COMPROMISED SUIT. W. F. McCann Secures Sixteen Thousand Dollars.

Associated Press Special Service. SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 10.—The suit for $300,000, instituted by W. F. McCann against the Blythe estate, for alleged breach of contract in disposing of land in which he was a partner with Blythe and also manager of his ranch, has been compromised for $16,000.

Charges Against Supt. Marks. VENTURA, Nov. 10.—Petitions, accompanied by affidavits of former patients and employees have been filed with the County Supervisors, asking the removal of Joshua Marks, superintendent of the County Hospital. Charges of cruelty and inhuman treatment of patients are made.

Worden Expected to "Fess." WOODLAND, Nov. 10.—It is believed that Worden, the convicted train-wrecker, will now make a clean breast of the affair, and that he will implicate all of the defendants, except Knox. Worden denies that he has promised to make a confession.

A Steamer Run Into. PORT TOWNSEND (Wash.), Nov. 10.—The steamer City of Seattle was run into by the stern-wheeler Mary Perley, below Seattle, this morning, sustaining damages to the amount of $700.

Thrown from a Wagon. PUABRILLE, Nov. 10.—Edward Holt and David Gilpe of this place were thrown from a wagon by the horses running away. Holt is dead and Gilpe can hardly live.

He Went to Sleep. SONOMA, Nov. 10.—An aged Indian named Dan went to sleep on the railroad track today. The Coroner's jury brought in a verdict of accidental death.

JOCKEYS INJURED. Serious Accident in the Alexander Island Races.

Associated Press Special Service. WASHINGTON, Nov. 10.—Racing at Alexander Island today was rendered more than usually exciting by an unfortunate accident which occurred in the fourth race, resulting in the death of the horse Flores and serious injury to jockeys Donnelly and King.

Just as the flag dropped starting the fourth race, Flores stumbled, turned a complete somersault and landed partially on Little Donnelly, El Telegrama fell over Flores, throwing Jockey King. Flores was killed by the accident, while Telegrama escaped unhurt. Donnelly had his leg fractured and was internally injured, while King had a shoulder-blade dislocated.

THE LEVEE STRIKE. NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 10.—The situation on the levee front is quiet today, and no further trouble is apprehended. Changes are being made to settle the strike. Fire was discovered this morning in the back of the old brick factory building. Two hundred bales of cotton were destroyed. The loss was small.

ADAMIC HERARDI. The Veteran Retires After Serving His Country Many Years.

BROOKLYN, Nov. 10.—Admiral Banastre Rich, senior officer of the active list of the United States Navy, hailed down his flag today at the Brooklyn Navy-yard where he has been commander for six months. A command was turned over to Capt. Rodgers, the formalities were less imposing than when he was promoted. Commodore Montgomery Seward, had been present. Commodore Seward is expected to take charge in about a week.

Strike on the Panama Canal. PANAMA, Nov. 10.—A strike has taken place among the laborers on the Culabra section of the Panama Canal. The men are paid only $5 to $10 a day, and find their own food. They demand an increase to $20 cents. This demand has been refused, and the canal authorities are engaging new men to fill the strikers' places. The strike has been declared as a precaution the government has reinforced the Culabra police.

MORE BONDS.

Strong Indications That Another Issue Will Be Made.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 10.—There are strong indications that another issue of bonds will be made during the coming week. For some time past the President has been growing upon the President that an issue of another $50,000,000 would seem to be necessary, and on his return from Buzzards' Bay he expressed to the members of his Cabinet his belief that the issue could not be long delayed, and that the sooner it was made the better.

Secretary Callahan, it is understood, took a most hopeful view of the situation. He argued in the Treasury Department that the revenue and customs must of necessity show a marked increase. The supply of money, which was withdrawn from bond just prior to the President's withdrawal of the act, to avoid the payment of the additional 20 cents per gallon, would very soon be exhausted, and that the demands of trade would result in largely increased revenues from this source, and what is true of the internal revenue was equally true of the customs. Just before the tariff law went into operation, the supply of goods of every description was abundantly large. THE RED AND BLUE.

Pennsylvania Clips Tiger Princeton's Claws.

A Game of Football that Puts the Former in the Front Rank.

A Notable Horseman Booked for 'Frisco—Theodore Winters Sells Some Yearlings—Races East and West.

Associated Press Leased-Wire Service.
TRENTON (N. J.), Nov. 10.—The stalwart sons of Pennsylvania have been victorious in the Princeton Tigers by a score of 12 to 0. It was a glorious triumph for the red and blue, and places Pennsylvania in the front rank of the football teams. Where the sturdy athletes of ancient Yale had failed and given up championship honors, Pennsylvania attacked, crashed through, and breaking asunder that terrible invincible line, they carried the ball forward and forward over the touch-down line and planted the red and blue flag behind the goal-post.

The Tigers, who were three hours previous bounced on the gridiron, now flew with new speed and confidence, many of them so weak and crippled that they had to be borne in the arms of comrades. The big crowd went wild. The huge yellow streamers and the long, black streamers faded from sight, in their places hundreds of blue and red umbrellas, blue and red handkerchiefs, blue and red ribbons burst into their like magic. The vast throng whooped and yelled until the big Statehouse far away in Trenton fairly quivered. Finally the enthusiasm became unmanageable, and a great force of police crowded surged into the gridiron and hoisted the Quaker kickers upon their shoulders, and carried them in triumph from the grounds.

It was a grand battle, stubbornly fought, but the Tigers at no time had a chance of victory. Pennsylvania played the game for man and never was the Quaker goal in danger. The mighty Wheeler was tossed like a baby in the arms of the giant "Warrior," Tremendous, prince of end rushers, found in Gilbert a king. The famous tackle, struggled manfully and vainly against his blue-headed opponent, Wagonwheel. Osgood, Brooke, Gilbert, Wharton and Knipe were all entrusted with advancing the ball, and all instituted the confidence placed in them.

Williams, the plucky little quarterback, handled himself like a veteran and scored the first touch-down for the red and blue. The ball had been passed back to Cochran for a kick on Princeton's twenty-yard line, but the Tiger full-back punted the ball into the ranks of his own men, and Williams, with lightning agility, tucked the leather under his left arm, dashed down the field, around the Tiger's line and dropped it behind the goal-post. Brooke placed the ball squarely between the posts and over the bar, giving six points for Pennsylvania.

In the second half, and about ten minutes after play had been called, no scoring was done in the first half, although the Quakers took the ball within six inches of Princeton's goal-line at the middle of the first interval.

Throughout the first half, as well as in the second, the ball was constantly in Princeton's territory. Never were the Quakers nearer than the Pennsylvania's twenty-five yard line. Pennsylvania's second touch-down was made about five minutes before the call of time. The Quakers punted through the line, and the ball was carried to the goal line.

Throughout the game Brooke's kicking was brilliant feature, and perhaps never has its goal been seen on the football field. Although a great surprise to the multitude and even to football experts, generally speaking, was a clear case of the rascals, and being unclassified. The full score was 12 to 0.

BROWN-ORANGE.
ORANGE (N. J.), Nov. 10.—Brown University, 10, Orange 10.

RELIANCE 33, UNIVERSITIES 0.
SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 10.—The Reliance team defeated the University of California team by a score of 33 to 0, but the victory was not a very glorious one, because the team that they defeated was the second team of the University aggregation.

Stanford defeated Sacramento. The game was played at the University grounds, and the Stanford team was victorious by a score of 10 to 0.

STANFORD DEFEATS SACRAMENTO.

ALL ABOUT A "BIKE."
NEW YORK, Nov. 10.—Mrs. Jesse B. Kirkland of No. 103 West End avenue is to appear in the Yorkville Court to answer to a charge of grand larceny. Mrs. Kirkland is the wife of Dr. Kirkland, a member of the New York Stock Exchange, and lives at No. 103 West End avenue.

Nearly two weeks ago Mrs. Kirkland sent to the establishment of Sidney B. Brown for a bicycle, with a view to purchasing a new one. She was the master of a riding-school and gives lessons in cycling to several prominent women, sending wheels to them as a gift. She had a chance to see one of her best customers in the Princess, a daughter of C. P. Huntington.

She showed that Brown sent to Mrs. Kirkland the bicycle which she had ordered. She was to pay for it in installments, and it seemed that she had agreed to these terms. The price was $75 if the trial proved satisfactory.

Mrs. Kirkland installed the bicycle in her room, and on fine days made a charming scene in the park on the wheel that had been ridden by the Princess. About the middle of the week the Princess assigned her attention to buy that identical wheel. She had a chance to see one of her best customers in the Princess, a daughter of C. P. Huntington.

but she was mistaken. Brown swore out a complaint for larceny, and Mrs. Kirkland will be sent to court. When Mrs. Kirkland appears, Lawyer Roger A. Pryor, Jr., will show the case for sent to the general sessions for trial. Mrs. Kirkland will furnish bail, two of the governors of the New York Club having volunteered for that service, along with a large number of other men.

A NOTABLE SHOW.

The Foremost Specimens of American Horseflesh to be Exhibited.

Associated Press Leased-Wire Service.
SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 10.—The entries closed today for the horsemanship to be held in this city for four days, beginning November 11. Of over one hundred classes will be shown, and the indications are that the association's initial show will be a marked success. The entries of the horse show have been entered, including twelve four-in-hand and eight tandem turnouts.

The finest specimens of horseflesh on American soil will be exhibited. The foremost breeders of California have entered heartily, and the show will be one of the best ever seen in America. In the Mechanic's Pavilion, where the show is to be held, a ring 300 feet long and 100 feet wide has been arranged. The show has been taken up by the society people of San Francisco.

AN OVERBEARING HORSEMAN.

Martin O'Brien and John A. Logan, J.A. Exchange Blows.

Associated Press Leased-Wire Service.
BALTIMORE, Nov. 10.—John A. Logan, Jr., who has a string of horses at the Maryland Horse Show, and Martin O'Brien, a local horseman, came to blows at the exposition last night. O'Brien claimed that Logan's horse got in the way of his turn-out and struck the boy rider. Later on Logan and O'Brien met and exchanged blows, but were separated before either combatant received any injury.

"PONY" IN ARREARS.

Sperdy's Son-in-law Oves Rent in New York.

Associated Press Leased-Wire Service.
NEW YORK, Nov. 10.—There is a "To let" sign on the gilt-lettered window of the Revue Franco-Americain office, at No. 27 West Thirtieth street. This publication, which has not yet had its initial issue, was projected by Prince Andre Louis Leopold Charles Marie Ponsiatowski, who, during the early summer, hired the offices of Charles Peck, agent of the building, and fitted them out in an artistic manner. The faithful clerk, left in charge by the titled proprietor, has not received his salary, and will find a surer remuneration in an auction store.

Nor is this all. Peck declares that there is four months' rent unpaid, and he has seized upon all the fixtures of the office to secure him against loss. It was the intention of the Prince, when he began making his arrangements in this city, to have the Revue make its appearance about February 1, 1895, but it may not be issued then; instead, long before that time, if Agent Peck's claim is not settled, the desks, rare pictures and costly rugs of the office will be sold under the Sheriff's hammer.

"I have a very poor opinion of the Prince's business abilities," says the clerk, "and I am not sure that he is not a swindler. He has obtained a position for him, where he will receive his wages regularly. Last spring, when the outlook for letting houses was poor, the Prince called on me and told me he would like to rent the parlor floor of No. 27. In view of his position, I let him have the floor for $25 a month. He said later on that he would probably need the whole building, and I believed him. The Prince's secretary paid me one month's rent. He has taken possession of a room, which was in the mansion. Perhaps it was his own property."

"I wrote a courteous communication to the Prince, but he did not have the courtesy to reply to me, but sent my letter to the secretary, who paid me $25. All that is in the place is in my keeping now. The Prince had better keep out of my way, or I might let him see some disagreeable truths."

FOREST FIRES.

Spreading Through Arkansas with Unabated Fury.

Associated Press Leased-Wire Service.
MEMPHIS, Nov. 10.—The forest fires in Arkansas, north of Memphis, are spreading with unabated fury, and with a continuance of the drought that has prevailed in this locality during the past nine weeks, there is no reason to expect a cessation of the fires until incalculable damage shall have been done. So far the fire has covered all the country from Marion to Jones's Landing, a distance of twenty-five miles, which it traveled in four days.

The burned territory is about five miles wide. Fortunately, the territory is thinly settled, and cultivated only in spots. The Payne and Green plantations have been denuded of all fencing and outbuildings. Standing corn and cotton have been swept away and fields left open to the stock. In Shelby, Obion and Tipton counties, Tennessee, there are other fires which threaten destruction to hundreds of thousands of acres of cotton and corn.

The fires in the Arkansas River valley are also in danger. In Arkansas also the Little Rock and Memphis Railroad is threatened. A special from Ripley, Tenn., to the Commercial-Appeal says that the people

| NEW YORK, Nov. 10.—The moving influence in Wall street today was the reported intention of the government to issue a $50,000,000 loan to the Associated Press, and the dispatches from Washington, leading bankers are inclined to the opinion that the government is contemplating it, and that official announcement of the fact will be made possibly early next week. The traders accepted the facts and bought stocks freely on the strength of it, on the theory that it would strengthen the market and that the government would not would cause appreciation in share values.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  |  |
| The opening there was very good buying on the buying interest inspired by the rumors of bond issue, and the market gained strength and volume. The stock bought and sold figures began to realize profits, which caused a reaction, limited to a fraction, except in the case of the stock bought and sold figures per cent. There were, however, too many buyers in the market to permit of a serious break, and when the small pressure to sell had been removed prices again moved up steadily. The market closed when the bears made a demonstration against values, which brought the figures down 1/4 to 1/2 per cent.                                                                                                                                                                                                                             |  |

CHICAGO, Nov. 10.—Despite strong cables, the fear heavy increase and free realizations weakened wheat and May closed with a loss of 1/4c. May corn dropped 1/4c and May oats 1/4c. Provisions were firm and closed with a slight gain. The usual Saturday dullness was apparent. The market opened with free selling at 60 1/2 down to 59 1/2. It stayed around 59 1/2 for a time, swinging 1-1/2 over or under that point, then a heavy decline and free realizations began a further rise. Selling to realize 1/2% to 1% was the main feature of the early part of the day. The market then recovered to 59 1/2. The tendency in corn was downward when it was not receiving some backing from activity in the option at 5 1/2. The market closed yesterday. It dropped to 4 1/2, recovered to 5 1/2, and finally closed at 5 1/2. The market for local operators. An increase of about 125,000 bushels for the week in local stocks is being figured on. The usual Saturday dullness was plainly visible in the oat market. Corn fluctuations ruled prices, which were weak during the night. The market opened at 31 1/2, then a range of 1/4. Opened at 32 1/2 for May, sold down to 31 1/2, and closed at 32 1/2. Provisions were firm and accompanied by a fair amount of activity in trading. The market closed yesterday. A Saving of Four Officials—Northern Pacific Railroad Considering a Proposal for a New Entrance into Portland.

Associated Press Leased-wire Service.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 10.—A circular was sent out yesterday by Vice-President Towne and General Superintendent Phillips, announcing the abolition of the Mojave division of the Southern Pacific Railroad and other changes to go into effect on November 15. It will result in the saving of four officials, the closing of division headquarters at Fresno and the re-adjustment of the San Joaquin division.

The lines between Lathrop, Stockton and Fresno, including the Raymond branch, are added to the western division, under charge of A. D. Wilder, with headquarters at Oakland Pier. A new San Joaquin division is being established with headquarters at Bakersfield. It will comprise all lines between Mendota, Fresno and Los Angeles, now embraced in the San Joaquin division, including the Polasky branch.

A NORTHWESTERN COMBINE.

PORTLAND, Nov. 10.—The Oregonian says that the Northern Pacific Railroad company is now considering a proposition to come into Portland over the Oregon Railway and Navigation Company's line from Wallula. The Oregon Railway and Navigation Company has made a proposal to the Northern Pacific to transfer to that company the segment between the two roads, after which the terms are satisfactory the Northern Pacific will accept, thus securing entrance into Portland by a route which will be about 250 miles shorter than the present one by way of Tacoma.

General Traffic Manager Harbord of the Northern Pacific will have a conference a few days for the purpose of holding a conference with General Manager McNeil of the O. R. and N. R.

ROCKEFELLER AND THE TRANS-PACIFIC.

TACOMA (Wash.) Nov. 10.—It is reported here that John D. Rockefeller and the Standard Oil Company have induced the Amoor Steamship Company to be operated in connection with the Trans-Pacific line, looking to transfer to that company its Trans-Pacific line at Everett, Wash., in which town Rockefeller is largely interested.

The same authority says that arrangements have been made in New York to start the line immediately and that the new whaleback steamer City of Everett will be the first to start. The new building material for the eastern end of the Trans-Pacific Railroad. The great Northern Railroad is supposed to be a factor.

THE U. P. AND THE GULF LINE.

DENVER, Nov. 10.—The Union Pacific receivers have completed arrangements with the Gulf line, whereby the Union Pacific will manage the Denver shops for the Gulf road work. The receivers today announced that the Union Pacific receiver, Agent Sempel of the Gulf road, Boulevarde of Holland, representing the largest holdings of the Union Pacific securities, had been authorized to take over the west over the system on a tour of inspection.

THE TRANSIT OF MERCURY.

Observations Made at Lowe Observatory, Echo Mountain.

ECHO MOUNTAIN, Nov. 10.—(Special Correspondence.) Preparations for observing the transit of Mercury across the sun's equatorial had been carefully made last night, and when the critical moment for first contact approached this morning the observers were ready to begin. The seven-inch telescope was contrived to have a three-inch aperture, to reduce the strong light, and, in addition to this, the planet was viewed through a glass which would further protect the eyes.

Through the kindness of A. A. Hatt of the Western Union Telegraph Company, the observers had been able to view the transit wire into the observatory about ten minutes before the first contact and a few minutes after the second contact, thus eliminating every possibility of error.

By first contact, it meant the instant the limb of Mercury touches the limb of the sun, and second contact, when the planet is entirely on the sun. The third contact was when Mercury touched the other limb of the sun, and the fourth contact when it leaves the sun and disappears from the field of vision. The sun appeared two minutes later than the predicted time, the first contact occurring precisely at 57 minutes and 10 seconds, and the second contact at 57 minutes and 10 seconds, at 57 minutes and 10 seconds, at 57 minutes and 10 seconds, at 57 minutes and 10 seconds.

An assistant stood at the foot of the observing chair, watch in hand, and, when the signal "now," came, the time was recorded. Mercury appeared at the same spot that was being watched, and extremely accurate contacts were obtained.

A very interesting phenomenon, which has been seen by astronomers, was distinctly. It is called the "black drop." When a planet is first seen wholly on the sun's disk, instead of retaining the form of a circle, it becomes flattened and drawn out in the form of a balloon, the narrow neck connecting the limb; the planet in an instant it jumps, and resumes its normal shape.

The sun is seen between the dark disk and the edge of the sun. I do not mean to say that Mercury really assumes the form of an anvil, but it appears as if many theories have been advanced to account for this strange phenomenon, none of which are entirely satisfactory.

The astronomer, Kepler, first predicted a transit of Mercury in 1631 and they have since been observed at intervals of seven years. The last transit was in 1875, and another will occur for seven years.

The third contact took place at 1 o'clock 11 minutes 26 seconds, and disappeared at 1 o'clock 18 minutes 26 seconds. The planet appeared to hang on and remain almost stationary before its disappearance.

ELECTRIC OIL HEATERS.

There is a new oil heater that is approaching these. They are the best made.

CLOSE AND UNCERTAIN.

The returns received yesterday and up to the time of going to press this morning added 87 precincts to the number previously reported. The total precincts reported by the Associated Press now give Budd's plurality as 757, showing a net gain over Friday's figures of 21 for the Democratic candidate.

Advices come to The Times from Anaheim, from a perfectly reliable and well-informed source, showing that Mr. Estee has 110 more votes in Orange county than have heretofore been credited to him in the dispatches. The gain is in two precincts, the returns from which, in the haste of compilation, did not appear in the original returns from that county, although the votes in the precincts referred to were properly counted and will appear in the official returns. The Associated Press appears not to have been advised of this discrepancy, which, if confirmed, will go far toward deciding the result in favor of Mr. Estee.

A Nashville dispatch received at an early hour this morning says that the Democratic Executive Committee practically admit the election of Evans (Rep.) for Governor.

ORGANIZED DEFEAT.

The fact that during such a Republican landslide as we have witnessed throughout the country, and at a time when the people of California, in common with the people of the country at large, were actually aching to vote the Republican ticket, this State, which otherwise elects almost its entire State ticket, including the Lieutenant-Governor, should "turn down" the head of the ticket in favor of its Democratic opponent, may well excite the curiosity and amazement of Americans west of the mountains. That amazement will be increased when they learn that the defeated candidate is a broad-minded statesman, a man of recognized ability, of national reputation, and an old resident of California, against whose personal character even his opponents have urged nothing, while his successful Democratic rival is a comparatively new man in the political history of the State, without any previous State-wide reputation, and in all respects a lightweight of demagogic tendencies, over whose private reputation a dark shadow rests.

This amazement will, however, not be shared by level-headed, observing Californians, in touch with the people who understand the method of Mr. Estee's nomination and the impression which was thereby made upon the thinking voters of the State.

The defeat of Morris M. Estee for Governor of the State of California in 1894 is attributable to a cause like unto that which defeated Gen. Harrison for President in 1892. Neither of the candidates, although good men, were the first choice of the people. They were forced upon the people by machine politics, in the one case represented by Federal office-holders, more than one hundred and fifty in number, sitting in the Minneapolis convention; in the other by a State boss of unsavory reputation. In both cases the independent Republican voters showed their opinion of these methods at the polls. A man may take a horse to water, but he cannot make him drink. A boss could nominate Estee as bosses nominated Harrison—but he could not elect him. This is the recourse which independent Republicans have at the ballot-box. They have shown that they know how to use it.

The conscience of The Times is clear in regard to both these lamentable errors, which were little less than political crimes. In 1892 we protested strongly against the forcing down the throats of Republican voters of a candidate who was not their choice. We declared that, in case these methods should prove successful, the Republican ticket would be in danger. When, in spite of protests from all parts of the country, Gen. Harrison was nominated, the machine men of the party nobly supported the National Republican ticket; but it was of no avail. The great body of the Republican voters had determined to rebuke the insolence of the Praetorian guard, and they did so.

When, at Sacramento, a few months ago, the hand of the boss began to show itself, we again warned the Republican leaders in the State that they were inviting defeat. We showed that Mr. Estee, though in all respects a worthy man, was not a vote-getter, and that the general choice of California

Republicans, and that his nomination would be suicidal for the party. Mr. Daniel M. Burns nominated Estee. Southern California supported the Republican ticket, and did its best to defeat the Democratic candidate; but the Republican voters of the State at large will otherwise, and overcame the large plurality given to Estee south of the Tehachapi. The moment the nomination of Estee was a fact accomplished, that moment was defeat organized and ordained.

Will the bosses heed these lessons? Will they learn that Republican voters are not to be herded like sheep? Time will show. If they do not; if Republican leaders fail to learn wisdom through experience, then the Democratic party will have its lease of existence prolonged for many years to come.

It would be foolish to ignore the fact that this California election conveys yet another lesson. The success of Budd for Governor and of Sutro for Mayor of San Francisco—the latter having been forced into the field at the last moment solely on the ground of his hostility to the Southern Pacific Company—shows that the people of the State have become very weary of the rule of that corporation, and that any candidate for office who is known to be backed by it will stand small chance of success. The company's persistent participation in politics has fostered demagoguery and been of infinite injury to the State and to the road.

The machine in American politics is becoming as dangerous to those who use it as the gasoline stove is in the American household.

It is the supreme need of the hour, the paramount duty of honest and patriotic voters of all parties to unite and shatter the machine wherever it is set up. On that line this journal pledges itself to stand and labor and fight shoulder to shoulder with patriotic Americans everywhere.

Even should Mr. Estee be found successful on the final count, the truth and the apostateness of the above strictures cannot be shaken by the fact.

THE SCIENCE OF MUNICIPAL GOVERNMENT.

We are not quite done with politics for the year. Now that the State and county election is over, citizens of Los Angeles will begin to turn their attention to the municipal election, which is the next business on the programme. Few public questions have attracted more attention in the United States during the past few years than that of the government of our large cities, which is becoming recognized as a science, and one which it requires a considerable amount of study to become proficient in.

The latest contribution to the literature of municipal reform is made by Alfred R. Conkling, who, having been a member of the Board of Aldermen of the city of New York, has had an excellent opportunity to learn how and why the great metropolis is so badly ruled. He calls his book "A Primer of the Science of City Government," and says that there is not, so far as he knows, a single popular book in the English language on municipal government, and is inclined to think that if intelligent men had studied in text books the science of city government as they do the principles of political economy, there would be less misrule than now.

He attributes the defective municipal government of this country partly to the rapid growth of cities, and the ignorance, venality and lack of foresight of their rulers. Another cause assigned is the seeming inability of voters to emancipate themselves from national issues in local elections, and to ignore utterly the fact that the chief functions of a city are administrative rather than political, and that it should be governed like any business corporation. Filthy and badly-paved streets, a scanty water supply, defective sewerage, and the voting away corruptly of valuable franchises do not have the least effect on the ordinary voter when fairly prosperous. It is only when the taxes get to be too high and his pocket is touched that he breaks over party lines and goes for the bosses.

for political reasons. But the worst class of public officers are not usually employed in clerical positions by the municipalities. They are sent to the boards of aldermen, to the city council and to the lower house of the State legislature.

As regards the mayor, Mr. Conkling believes in giving him ample powers, so that if he governs well he will get the credit, and if he governs badly he will have to take all the responsibility. While theoretically his appointments may with propriety be confirmed by the council, yet the opinion is expressed that it would work better in practice to give him an unlimited power of appointment and of removal.

Further, however, is going somewhat further than would seem proper to the average citizen. At least, until we see how the system works, it will generally be considered better to have such a reasonable check on the power of the mayor as is furnished by the provision for confirmation on part of the council.

The Chicago Tribune has devoted much space of late to the subject of municipal reform, and it will be remembered that its proprietor, Mr. Medill, gave our citizens an address on the subject about a year ago, in which he outlined his theory of municipal government, including the granting of greater power to the mayor, which ideas have, to a great extent, been embodied in the amendments to the new charter that will shortly be brought before the Council. It is the opinion of the Chicago Tribune that the veto power of the mayor as concerns the granting of franchises should be made more potent than it is. Mr. Conkling goes still further than this. He thinks the mayor's veto power should be more extensive than that of presidents or governors. He suggests that a four-fifths vote of the council be necessary to override the veto of the mayor in ordinary cases, and that where an ordinance involves the appropriation of money or a franchise, a unanimous vote of the council be required to nullify the veto. In the case of the Broadway surface franchise, the ordinance was passed over the veto by a vote of 22 to 2. There eleven-twelfths of the Aldermen were bought.

Should the amendments to the Los Angeles city charter be adopted, as may safely be expected, we shall have an opportunity to judge of the advantages which attach to this system of giving more power to the chief magistrate of a city. It need scarcely be said that it will then more than ever be necessary for citizens to exercise the greatest care in selecting their Mayor, for upon his character and ability will to a great extent depend whether the government of the city during his term of office shall be characterized by extravagance and inefficiency or the reverse. We believe that good citizens, regardless of party, are this year disposed to approach the municipal question in a calm and unprejudiced manner, leaving the subject of national politics entirely aside. The experience of New York shows what may be done under the most adverse circumstances in the line of municipal reform, when the decent voters of a city once make up their mind and unite for the common good.

Atty-Gen. Olney, in an official opinion, recently declared in effect that workmen have a right to organize into trades unions for self protection. This is an opinion that would have done no discredit to the ponderously sapient Mr. Bunsby. It is a proposition which nobody disputes. But when labor organizations presume to dictate as to how their employers' business shall be managed, and undertake to say that men not belonging to their societies shall be debarred from gaining an honest living, questions are raised which are entirely distinct from that of the right of laboring men to organize. Labor organizations have a legitimate sphere of operations, and it is only when they step outside of their sphere that their operations become unjust, tyrannous, un-American and against the public good. It is the law of the land, not the trades-unions, that is supreme in this country.

The mean insinuations of some Democratic papers that there is either desire or intention to "count Mr. Budd out" by unfair means is as silly as it is gratuitous. If Mr. Budd has an honest plurality of no more than one vote, he is entitled to be seated in the executive chair, and nobody has a right to dispute his title. The slowness of getting in returns from remote precincts is unavoidable, under the present system of counting and forwarding the returns, and the delay does not imply chicanery of any kind. All good citizens, without regard to party will insist on a fair count. Any person or persons—including Democrats—who should attempt to resort to dishonest methods in this matter would speedily find himself covered with infamy and would soon land in the lock-up.

The English press finds Mr. Wilson's defeat a very bitter pill to swallow. Commenting thereon, the Westminster Gazette says: "While McKinley has triumphed and Wilson has been defeated, the decision of West Virginia must be a source of regret to many Englishmen. Wilson is a man of high character and broad views, and his non-success is a great loss to Congress." The Pall Mall Gazette feels just as bad as the Westminster does, and all the other prominent British editors express grief and disgust at the downfall of their friend Wilson and the party of free trade. All of which is very, very touching.

The present indications are that there will be several contests before the next House of Representatives, as allegations of fraud are freely made in connection with the elections in several districts in various parts of the country. It is to be hoped that these contests will be decided strictly on their merits, and in conformity with facts. The seating of partisan contestants by the party in power, without much regard for the equities, has constituted a grave abuse in the past, of which both parties have been guilty. The incoming Republican Congress cannot afford to seat any contestant for merely partisan reasons. It should turn over a new leaf in this matter and set an example worthy to be followed by all future Congresses.

Now that the election is over, the esteemed Stockton Mail frankly confesses that "the Governor of a State does not make the harvests bountiful, nor fix the price at which the farmer sells his products." While the Stockton Mail was whooping "er up for Budd, prior to the election, it apparently sought to convey the impression that its candidate, if elected, could not only do these things, but could enact and repeal the laws of the State at pleasure, increase or reduce taxation, regulate the rainfall, control the temperature, guide the stars in their courses, engineer the solar system, and accomplish all things whatsoever that might be desired by those who could be induced to vote for him. It is a relief to find a Budd organ admitting that Jim is only a mere man, after all, possessing none of the attributes of omnipotence. The Mail has proved itself a strutting humbug, a pretentious bluffer, and—another.

Ambassador Bayard sailed for England yesterday. He advises the Democrats in Congress to go on with their tariff-smashing while they have the power, in defiance of the overwhelming verdict of Tuesday's election against such a course. Mr. Bayard's advice will undoubtedly help to make him even more popular in England than he is now; but Democrats who retain even a faint hope of keeping their party organization together in 1896 will be likely to look twice before they leap into the yawning gulf of destruction which Bayard's advice foretells. This Democratic ministerial today is about to commit the same blunder abroad that was committed by Chairman Wilson, to the disgrace of American statesmanship.

The next Legislature of California should pass an amendment to the present election law providing for the use of two ballot boxes at each voting precinct, so that the counting of the votes can proceed simultaneously with the voting, after a certain number of ballots have been cast. This plan is in operation in several of the Eastern States and the results are highly satisfactory, as by this system the count can be completed within one or two hours after the last ballot has been cast. This is a greatly needed reform, which cannot be too strongly urged.

President Cleveland is reported to be deeply grieved over the defeat of Professor Wilson. Mr. Cleveland has many sharers of his grief on the other side of the Atlantic. He should make haste to find some snug berth in the diplomatic service for the turned-down professor. There is a rumor that Thomas F. Bayard, Ambassador to England, contemplates resigning that office. Here would be a good job for Wilson. He would be in a congenial atmosphere, where he could learn a great deal that he doesn't know about free trade.

The tin-pail manufacturers are willing to arbitrate the differences with their employees, and announce that they will accept any reasonable decision in order to resume business. Wage reductions were demanded to meet the reduced tariff, and upon the refusal of the men to accept the reductions nearly all the mills in the country were shut down several weeks ago. If the arbitration scheme succeeds there is no likelihood that the old wage-scale will be restored, as such a thing would be impossible under the reductions of 1 cent per pound on imported tin-plates. This is only one case out of many in which the Democratic tariff caused direct injury to American labor. Meanwhile, the imports of British tin-plate have enormously increased since the passage of the Gorman-Wilson tariff.

The conviction of Worden, the Woodland train-wrecker, of murder in the first degree means the hanging of that worthy, unless he finds some loophole of escape by reason of the law's delay. But Worden is not the only one of the gang of conspirators who deserves hanging. The evidence adduced at Worden's trial, together with his own confession, implicates several other who, we are sure, are equally guilty with himself. Justice will not be satisfied until every one of these dastardly conspirators has been convicted and punished according to his deserts. The blood of brave Engineer Clark and of the others who went down with him to death in that awful wreck calls aloud for justice.

Some days before the elections The Times predicted that another bond issue of not less than $50,000,000 would follow very closely upon election day. The prediction, as it appears from Washington dispatches, is about to be fulfilled. The amount designated is an even $50,000,000. The constantly accruing deficit in the treasury made it apparent several weeks ago that another bond issue could not long be postponed, but the administration held it back, by one makeshift and another, until after the elections. This was done for political effect. But the effect doesn't appear, from advices thus far received, to have been very beneficial to the party in power.

Coxey, the vagabond blatherskite, who was buried under an adverse majority of 12,000 in the Eighteenth Congress District of Ohio, predicts all sorts of calamities as a result of the election. He advises people to wind up all their business transactions as soon as possible and prepare for the anticipated crack of doom. There have been calamities in the past, and there may be calamities in the future. But the defeat of Coxey is not nearly so great a calamity as he seems to imagine it to be.

The Chicago Herald's Washington correspondent is authority for the statement that President Cleveland is glad of the defeat of Hill and thinks it will end Mr. Hill's political career. It seems rather unkind to kick a man when he is down. Has Grover so soon forgotten Mr. Hill's brilliant defense of the President when the latter was so vigorously assailed by Mr. Gorman and others in the Senate only a few short weeks ago?

The "tariff reformers" claim that if they had had time to explain to the farmers how wool can be cheaper to the manufacturer and at the same time dearer to the wool-growers, the result of Tuesday would have been different. No doubt, no doubt! Many of them now have plenty of leisure to make explanations, since their occupations as law-makers are gone.

Grover Cleveland is having considerable quiet amusement just now at David B. Hill's expense. But wait until David B. gets back to the Senate. The real fun will then begin. Mr. Hill has an excellent memory, and is in a position to insert a good many sharp chestnut burrs in the place where the astute Grover seats his 300 pounds of avoirdupois.

Gen. Lew Wallace, the distinguished soldier, diplomat and gentleman, whose fame is enduring both in arms and literature, spoke to a very large and fine audience at the Church of the Unity last night. He gave his popular lecture "How I Wrote Ben Hur," to a delighted gathering of intelligent men and women, who hung upon his every word with deepest interest. Subsequently the general attended a reception given by the Loyal Legion at the Nadeau Hotel, where he met many companions and ladies and gentlemen, and spoke happily.

China has again appealed to Uncle Sam to use his influence to stop the cruel war, of which the Flowery Kingdom is getting the business end. It is hardly probable, however, that either the United States or the nations of Europe will interfere in the conflict. It doesn't seem to have occurred to the Chinese government to make application to Japan for a cessation of hostilities pending the settlement of the terms of surrender. The pig-tail government appears to be playing the baby act.

The free-wool clause of the present tariff will greatly reduce the number of sheep in the United States before it can be repealed. But the certainty that it will be repealed so soon as the Republican majority in Congress can get a whack at it will in some degree serve as a check upon the reduction of flocks by inducing some wool-raisers to hold on and wait for the better times which are sure to come to them when they can be reached by Republican legislation.

The Russian Nihilists are reported to have decided to abandon their policy of bloodshed and terrorism, and to adopt the plan of peaceful agitation, with a view to giving Russia a constitutional monarchy. If this report be true, the Russian Nihilist may yet accomplish some beneficial reforms.

George Utley, of Grinnell, Iowa, in 1852, bought sheep for $3 per head. He has just been selling them at $1 per head. This is the difference between McKimleyism and Wilsonism. Yet the latter assumes to confer great and innumerable blessings and benefits upon the farmer.

Tom Reed will probably be the Speaker of the next House, if he will accept the position. The return of "Czar" Reed to the speakership will be gall and wormwood to the Democratic contingent; but they will have to take their medicine just the same.

An intimation comes from Washington that President Cleveland may be a candidate for a third term. If it is a "windication" that he is after, by all means let him try to get it in that way, and the Republicans will have fun with him.

Jerry Simpson, the sockless one, is at present a statesman out of a job. But he needn't be out of a job very long. There are lots of dime museums in the country that would give Jerry a job, with salary enough to pay his board and keep.

Prior to the late election, Hugh J. Grant, Tammany's candidate for Mayor, said of New York: "This is a Democratic city." Mr. Grant is not now so sure of New York's Democracy as he was when he made that declaration.

Alfred, the Anarchist Governor of Illinois, says he objects to "the clutch of a Federal court" about his neck. The clutch of a rope is about the right kind of a clutch for avowed Anarchists of all classes and conditions, governors included.

Budd was banqueted Thursday night by a coterie of his political friends in San Francisco in honor of his assumed victory. To say the least, the eatin' and drinkin' were rather premature.

Democratic organs are now discouraging learnedly of "the statesman-like course of letting business alone." The proper time to have let business alone was when it was prosperous.

It took a Strong man to down the Tammany tiger in his lair. But the occasion brought forth the man, and the deed was accomplished with neatness and dispatch.

A newspaper heading tells of "snow eighty feet deep." The article is supposed to refer to the avalanche which overwhelmed the Democratic party last Tuesday.

Waite of Colorado is said to contemplate removing to Illinois. Colorado is to be congratulated—but will Illinois stand it?

Two of a kind—Lewelling and Waite.

Hurrah for Jimmy Budd.
Hurrah for Budd—Jim Budd!
For everything he does he's good;
For half the votes of the State he's good;
The other half for him,
The other half for him,
And a legal contest will settle it for good.

But, by the great Saint Peter,
Where, O where is Jeter?
He came down with a dull, a sickening thud!
His name from memory faded—
May he be chasing Democratic shades—
While we, the half of us, hurrah for Budd.
Where is the toe of the great S. P.?
The vernal fustian—where is he?
Back to his orange farm in his California clime!
And there he will remain
Till they call him out again.
And he never fails to come forth, every time.

The people well have spoken,
They gave a sign, a token;
The glorious people voted for the public good.
But they made a little error,
In their hurry or their terror,
When they—the half of them—elected Budd.

Sarah Bernhardt has had 1607 photographs of herself in different attitudes taken by one photographer in Paris. No one knows how many more have been taken. The earliest known was taken in 1857, when she was playing at the Odeon and represents her in crinoline and with an innocent and childish face.

A young woman in a Boston suburb now has a collection of 1000 books, and is the local library, but has since lost her position. She spent about a fortnight in rearranging the books, and it was then found that she had got rid of the blues, reds, greens, browns and other colors together, beyond which harmonious form of scheduling her ambition had no room.

THE LOYAL LEGION.

THE RECEPTION GIVEN AT THE NADEAU LAST EVENING.

Prof. Lowe and Family the Guests of the Evening—Short Speeches Made by Gen. Lew Wallace and Others.

The local organization of the California Commandery of the Military Order of the Loyal Legion of the United States, tendered a reception last evening to Prof. T. S. C. Lowe and family of Pasadena. The reception was given at the Nadeau Cafe, and was held after the conclusion of Gen. Lew Wallace's lecture, the General being one of the invited and honored guests. Just before the guests assembled at the punch table, a brief entertainment, musical, social and literary, was given in the Nadeau parlors. A vocal solo was rendered by Miss Orville Donnell, and a paper of army reminiscences was read by Maj. Ben. C. Truman. (Maj. Truman's paper will be found printed in another part of the Times.)

After the entertainment was concluded the guests assembled in the banquet hall, where some time was spent in despatching the menu and fighting their battles over again. Capt. W. H. Seamans presided, and in the course of his opening remarks stated that Prof. Lowe had been elected an honorary member of the order, under whose auspices the reception was tendered, in recognition of his acknowledged valuable services to the cause of the Union, during the War of the Rebellion, as head of the balloon signal service in the Army of the Potomac. This recognition was given to Prof. Lowe, despite the fact that he was not a commissioned officer, he having declined the tender of a commission from President Lincoln. The speaker also acknowledged, on behalf of the companions of the Loyal Legion, the courtesies and hospitalities received at the hands of Prof. Lowe and family at Echo Mountain, and at their Pasadena home, on a memorable day last summer. He then read a series of handsomely engraved resolutions, expressing the appreciative sentiments of the companionship towards the matter, and which were subsequently presented to the guest of the evening.

Prof. Lowe, in suitable terms, expressed his thanks for the honor conferred upon him; and then Gen. Lew Wallace was introduced. Gen. Wallace begged to be excused from speaking at length, saying that he was suffering from what he would call an "Oregon cold," and the effort which he had found it necessary to exert in speaking to a large audience earlier in the evening, had disabled his voice. Being pressed, however, by cries of "Go on!" he said among other happy things, that when he returned to the people of Indiana, he would be an excellent advertisement for Southern California, so favorably had he been impressed with her charms. The people of California are, nearly all of them, notable for effectively advertising their own locality, and he thought he had "assumed the trick." Gen. Wallace continued in a happy and patriotic vein of thought, and was warmly applauded when he sat down.

Gen. Ben. F. Butler was introduced as a man who has received "a number of bullet wounds, but all in front." He paid a high tribute to the military achievements of Gen. Wallace and his command at the battle of Shiloh, and spoke particularly of a critical time in that battle, when Gen. Wallace, with his division, came upon the field in the very hour of sorest need, saving his (Butler's) command, and grandly aiding to save the day to the Union arms.

Mad. Ben. Truman talked briefly and Col. H. G. Otis was also called upon, but excused himself. Mrs. E. L. Swaine gave a recitation; then the gathering broke up at a late hour, all joining in the singing of "Marching Through Georgia" and the giving of hearty cheers for Gen. Wallace, Prof. Lowe and the Loyal Legion.

LETTERS TO THE TIMES.

"Leaves Have Their Times to Fall." RIVERSIDE, Nov. 9, 1894.—(To the Editor of The Times): The statement of your Riverside correspondent, that a successful Prohibitionist candidate obtained his success by getting drunk, is a mistake in two essential particulars: (1) The Prohibitionists had no candidate, but the gentleman referred to received the support of all parties polling the largest vote of any candidate on any ticket. (2) The gentleman is not a Prohibitionist politically. We are assured that he is not a drinking man, but yielded at this time to the false idea, very current in some circles, that alcoholic stimulants are helpful to one when physically exhausted. The circumstance affords the strongest confirmation to the contention of Prohibitionists, that no man at any time is safe when drinking alcoholic liquors.

W. A. WRIGHT.

Olney's Sophistry. LOS ANGELES, Nov. 10, 1894.—(To the Editor of The Times): In Mr. Olney's paper to receivers of the Reading Railroad he described with great minuteness the machinery of the labor organizations and their beneficent objects, and found they were perfect as human expedients and equally good as evolution, and highly commendable and beneficial in their operation and results. The order for strikes has to go before and be approved by four tribunals and he is indorsed by representatives of many subordinate divisions, when it should come forth fair as the sun and clear as the moon, etc.; and so he extolled their wisdom to the skies. Now, what seems remarkable, and to me beyond comprehension, is that no allusions were made to the recent results of all their wisdom, that, in its extreme, paralyzed so many industries, ruined thousands of farmers, destroyed thousands of tons of merchandise, wrecked and burned trains, wantonly killed many persons, and all to punish one rich man in Chicago! The organization he so highly commended ordered and accomplished all this ruin with no benefit, but irreparable injury to themselves. It would seem that our Attorney-General's statesmanship had gone, as Jim Fisk said, "where the woodbine twined," or he recent special pleading would not have ignored the disgraceful events of the last six months. So thinks PLAIN JOHN.

Important Real Estate Deal. A large real estate deal, of which little has been said, occurred about a month ago in the sale of the property situated on the southwest corner of Fourth and Spring streets, formerly owned by Mrs. Spence. The purchase was for $100,000 in cash and the money has been put up. An abstract of the property is now being prepared. The lot has a frontage of 120 feet on Spring street and of 165 feet on Fourth street. The purchaser is said to be an Eastern man, but his name is at present withheld.

IN the cleaning-up process we have carefully gone through every department in the house and have gotten the goods out on the counter and a price has been made upon them for the purpose of closing them out. Such goods as cotton flannels, outing flannels, prints, gingham, table linens, napkins, stand and table covers, hats, corsets, ribbons, dress goods, and various other goods are included in the lot. The goods are all good and the styles are up to the standard. In a great many articles we have a few too many to do the same amount of business with and as we intend to pursue an entirely different policy in the future the surplus will be closed at a loss to turn them into money. The entire business of this city can be done upon one-half the present stocks carried by the merchants of this city and the trade would be better for it. Newer goods, lower prices and better styles would be the result. Gingham that have been 8 1-3, 10, and 12 1-2cts will be sold for 5cts, 6 1-4 and 8 1-3cts. Prints that have been 8 1-3 now 5cts. Cotton flannels that have been 15, 18 and 20cts now 10 and 12 1-2cts. Dress goods that have been $1.50 and $2.00 now 75cts. Dress goods that have been $1.00 and $1.25 now 75cts. These goods are mostly high class plain goods that have real merit for colors, style and wear. Jersey Ribbed underwear that have been 50cts now 33 1-3cts. Underwear that has been 75cts now 50cts. Little lots of gents' collars and cuffs, valises and hand satchels as well as a few dozen hose and half hose to close. They are all good but goods that we either do not intend to carry or they are odd lots that will be sold very cheap to close them out. We are making prices now in the heart of the season that is usually made in January. The business is showing a large increase. Ladies' felt hats that are worth from $1.00 to $3.00 now 25cts. One or two of a kind. Remnants of laces and embroideries and ribbons at about one-half the regular price. They are in the way and must go. There will be great bargains in the linen department early Monday morning. A complete change in the stocks will be made by or before the 1st of January. Every dollar's worth will be sold out of this department and an entire new line will take their place. Great bargains will be offered in this department. It will receive a great overhauling. Another department that will see the keen edge of the pruning knife is cloaks and furs. We have no furs that we carried over from last year. On the contrary they are all new. We are making a radical change in the stocks and the present cloak stock will all be closed. Cloaks are cheap.

Judge Smith Orders a Youthful Offender Committed to the Industrial School at Los Angeles.

Court Notes.

At the City Hall yesterday the Board of Public Works prepared their weekly report, and Henry T. Hazard filed his petition of nomination for Mayor. The work of getting ready for the coming city election was continued in the City Clerk's and City Attorney's offices.

About the Courthouse nothing but routine business occupied the attention of the officers, and the clerks were gratified for the opportunity to obtain a little rest after the rush of election time.

AT THE CITY HALL.

Public Works.
THE RECOMMENDATIONS TO BE PRESENTED TO THE COUNCIL.

The Board of Public Works has prepared the following communication for presentation to the City Council tomorrow:

"We recommend that the request of the Street Superintendent to be authorized to employ twenty additional men and two teams be granted, and the City Attorney instructed to prepare and present the necessary ordinance therefor."

"We recommend that the petition from E. W. Campbell et al., asking permission to grade, gravel and curb Shatto street, from Vernon street to Union avenue, by private contract, be granted, and the City Attorney instructed to prepare and present the necessary ordinance therefor."

"We recommend that the petition from C. J. Mulholland, asking that the sidewalk between Wilshire and Union avenues be graded, gravelled and curbed with a sidewalk curb, be granted, and the City Engineer instructed to prepare and present the necessary ordinance of intention."

"We recommend that the petition from F. T. Becknell et al., asking that the sidewalk on the north side of Sand street, at the intersection of Broadway, be referred to the City Engineer."

"We recommend that the petition from A. N. Feldschau and others, asking that the north side of Seventh street, from Wall street to Main street, be sidewalked with a sidewalk curb, be granted, and the City Engineer instructed to prepare and present the necessary ordinance."

"We recommend that the petition from S. C. Hubbell, asking permission to grade the alley between Alvarado and Providence streets, running from Sixth to Orange streets, by private contract, be granted, and the City Engineer be instructed to prepare and present the necessary ordinance therefor."

"We recommend that the petition from S. C. Hubbell, asking to have the grade of Bonnie Brae street, between Sixth and Orange streets, changed and established so as to conform to the grade of Sixth street, be referred to the City Engineer to report the necessary ordinance therefor, if the petition represents a majority of the frontage affected."

"We recommend that the petition from Dea L. Bear and others in reference to a nuisance on Lake Shore avenue be referred to the City Engineer to report a means of removing same."

"We recommend that the petition from J. W. Healy and others, in reference to a catch basin at the corner of Mozart and Chestnut streets, be referred to the City Engineer."

"We recommend that the petition from E. W. Jones and others, asking to improve Lucas avenue, between Sixth and Orange streets, by private contract, under specifications Nos. 5 and 12, be granted, and the City Attorney directed to prepare and present the necessary ordinance therefor."

"We recommend that the petition from A. J. Wilson and others, for a sewer on St. Paul avenue, be referred to the City Engineer to prepare and present the necessary ordinance therefor."

"We recommend that the petition from the Spring-street Improvement Association, in reference to the sprinkling of South Spring street, be referred to the Superintendent of Street Sprinkling."

"We recommend that the petition from Mrs. V. Ybarra, asking that a sidewalk be laid on the west side of Los Angeles street, from the north line of Ninth street to the south line of the property of the petitioners, be referred to the City Engineer instructed to prepare and present the necessary ordinance therefor."

"Also, that the Street Superintendent be instructed to remove the sprinkling hydrant from the southwest corner of Eighth and Los Angeles streets to the northwest corner of Eighth and Los Angeles streets, as asked for in said petition."

"We recommend that the petition from B. F. Winslow and others, asking that the chicken ordinance be so amended as to take in block 11, of the Union tract, be granted, and the City Attorney instructed to prepare and present the necessary ordinance therefor."

"We recommend that the petition from L. G. Walters and others be referred to the City Engineer."

"We recommend that the petition from J. H. Call, asking action on several large holes in West Second street, near its junction with First street, be referred to the Street Superintendent, to take the necessary action to remedy the nuisance."

"We recommend that the petition from Ida M. Holden and others, asking to have Cambria street, graded, gravelled and curbed with redwood curb under the bond provisions of the Yonoma ordinance, be referred to the City Engineer to make an estimate of the cost of the same, and if the same exceeds the sum of $1 per front foot, then to present the necessary ordinance of intention therefor."

"We recommend that the petition from Maria Doffi Brooks and others, asking to have crosswalks laid on Belmont avenue, across Otter street, across Palo Alto street, and across Highland Court street, be granted, and the Street Superintendent instructed to place the same."

"We recommend that the ordinance to sidewalk Grand avenue, between Seventh street and Pico street, be placed upon its passage."

The Public Library.
A RESUME OF NEW BOOKS RECENTLY RECEIVED.

Among the new books recently received at the Public Library are some charming samples of the modern book-makers' art. In particular may be mentioned "The Lyrics and Ballads of Sir Walter Scott," edited with an introduction by Andrew Lang, and the frontispiece, being the Landmark portrait of Sir Walter himself. The little volume, beautifully bound in chocolate marbled cloth and decorated in gilt with the Scottish thistle, contains all those songs scattered throughout the works of Scott, which have long since become dear to the hearts of young and old alike.

Charles Scribner's production of Esther Wood's "Dante Rossetti" and the pre-Raphaelite movement, may be mentioned in this connection. Some of the most beautiful of Rossetti's pictures are here reproduced on heavy Japan paper, among them being "The Dream," "The Lady's Gown," and "Beata Beatrix." Other Scribner publications worthy of notice are the two volumes of List letters, collected by La Mar.

Along the line of poetry and belles lettres the following have special value: B. A. Oxon dedicates a lengthy study of Lord Byron to Austin Dobson, and John F. Gennep, he of rhetoric fame, devotes a special volume to Tennyson's "In Memoriam," its purpose and structure.

A small volume of sonnets and other verses by George Santayana, and brought out by Stone & Kimball, Cambridge, who are noted for their artistic issues, will be a particular joy to lovers of modern poetry. Then there is Bliss Carman's "Low Tide on Grand Pre," the author of which is just at present receiving so much favorable attention from the hands of the critics. It is a book of lyrics and bears many charming traces of its birthplace, the low, brown marshlands of Louisiana.

Gertrude Hall, a comparatively new Boston writer, has a volume of verse dedicated to Wolcott Balestier, and well illustrated in outline and design by Oliver Herford. Louise Imogen Guiney, the poetical postmistress, offers a little book of songs, entitled "A Roadside Harp," as does also Edith M. Thomas, in her "Fair Shadowland."

Gilbert Parker, because of whose romances the critics have styled him the "American Kipling," now appears for the first time with a volume of poetry, and calls it "A Lover's Diary."

Of the heavier books, we noticed Lockyer's "Astronomy," which, though it has been off the press nearly a year, may be new to some of the Los Angeles reading public. It is a well-prepared contribution on the study of temple worship and mythology of the ancient Egyptians. The author's purpose is to show that the civilization of the stars, to which some of the Egyptian temples were directed, opened a way to a study of the astronomy of the worshipers of Isis and Osiris. Both from a scientific and ethnological point of view, the book is of great value.

The last decade has, perhaps, seen more stupendous undertakings in the way of historic monuments than any other decade in the history of the world. A recent contribution is H. D. Traill's edition of "Social England," which, it is promised, will be a record of the progress of the people from the earliest times to the present day. The first two volumes only are ready, and they close with that period of English history which ends with the death of Henry VII. A fragmentary history of England, viz., "England Under Henry IV," by James H. Wylie, one of Her Majesty's inspectors of schools, is also noticed.

Justin Winsor, the learned librarian of Harvard College, sticks to his chosen field, American history, and enriches his library with many a treasure from his pen. The latest is a history of the geographical discovery in the interior of North America during 1834-1700, and it is named "Cartier to Fontenac." A valuable handbook is the "Sources of the Constitution of the United States," by C. Ellis Stevens.

Tupper's "Our Indian Protectorate," recently mentioned in these columns, has been supplemented by Lee-Warner's "The Protected Princes of India," and George Smith's "The Conversion of India," which latter covers a period from the time of Ptolemy to the present, A. D. 183-1883.

Some readers will be interested in McLennan's "Patriarchal Theory," wherein the author takes exactly the opposite view from that adopted by Sir Henry Maine years ago, and which has always been accepted as authoritative.

The three new volumes in the Hibbert lectures series, an invitation to contribute to which Ernest Renan considered one of the rewards of his life, are "D'Alviella," "The Conception of God as Illustrated by Anthropology and History," and "Upton on 'Bases of Religious Belief,' and Montefiore on the 'Origin and Growth of Religion,' as illustrated by the religion of the ancient Hebrews."

An old subject newly considered is one in the Columbia University biological series, being an outline of the development in the evolutionary idea, by H. F. Osborn, and called "From the Greeks to Darwin."

AT THE COURTHOUSE.

The Courts.
A JUVENILE OFFENDER BEFORE JUDGE SMITH.

Upon motion of the District Attorney, an information was filed in Department One yesterday morning, charging Louis Lasher, a sixteen-year-old boy, with petty larceny, second offense. The juvenile defendant, being in court, he was duly arraigned by Judge Smith, and, after waiving all his legal rights in the premises, entered his plea of guilty to the charge. In view of his youth, the court concluded not to send the twice-convicted thief to the penitentiary, but committed him to the Preston School of Industry, at Los Angeles, for the term of four years.

Court Notes.

Judge Smith heard and granted the motion of J. G. Laybourn's counsel for a certificate of probable cause, yesterday morning, thereby enabling the defendant to perfect his appeal to the Supreme Court.

John J. Ford, an Englishman, was duly admitted to citizenship of the United States, by Judge Smith yesterday, upon producing the requisite proofs of qualification.

In the Probate Court yesterday morning the argument of the proponents in the contest over the will of Mrs. Annie A. Pratt, deceased, was opened by Charles Silent, Esq., who occupied Judge Clark's attention until noon, when the matter went over until Tuesday next.

Judge York heard the case of Nettie Van Steenberg vs. J. Van Steenberg, an action for divorce, upon the grounds of desertion and failure to provide, and at the close of the evidence for the plaintiff, ordered a decree, as prayed for, by default.

The defendant in the case of A. F. Walker vs. the Southern California Improvement Company, having admitted the truth of the allegations contained in the complaint, Judge Van Dyke yesterday ordered judgment for the plaintiff therein as prayed for.

Judge Van Dyke heard the case of G. H. Gaynor vs. S. Smith, an action to recover a balance due on an account, appealed from the Justice Court of Soledad township, and ordered judgment for the defendant, thereby affirming the decision of the lower court.

The defendant in the case of S. P. Mulford (executor) vs. A. M. Prosser et al., having submitted to a default, Judge Van Dyke yesterday morning ordered judgment for the plaintiff in the sum of $353.05 against them.

E. K. Blades was duly appointed as commissioner by Judge McKinley yesterday, to sell the property recently foreclosed upon in the case of J. H. Collins vs. J. C. Gamble, bonds being fixed in the sum of $5000.

The trial of Huber divorce case, was concluded before Judge Shaw yesterday morning, the case being submitted, without argument at the close of the defendant's testimony, and the prayer of plaintiff's complaint being denied by the court.

Among the documents filed with the County Clerk yesterday were the preliminary papers in the following new cases: V. H. Raleigh vs. George W. King, action to compel the specific performance of a contract for the sale of six lots on Brent street, and for $5000 damages.

Mrs. M. Morgan vs. F. W. Wood, executor, etc., action to quiet title to lot 13, block 27, of the Park tract.

Without Fail.
The man stood 'mid his business wreck,
Whence all but him had fled,
The Sheriff took the little check
His sale price, and said to him:
"Old fellow, next time just be wise—
Don't take my words amiss—
If merchants always advertise
They'll never come to this."

Our New Book

Tells you all about everything we keep, that's what makes it interesting. Sent free if you send for it.

Dress Goods.

The greatest events of the age are in its best thoughts. Our fabric ensemble represents the best thoughts of the present Dress Goods age. This makes our offerings for this week eventful. Price tales as we tell them:

At 50c 35 distinct designs in all-wool suitings (some with a little silk thread), 38 inches wide, probably worth a quarter more.
At 75c Silk and wool novelties, winsome weaves; the assortment is beautiful; 40 inches wide, welcome weights for fall; a dollar might have done as well.
At $1.00 Extremely effective new stuffs in silk and wool mixtures; two widths, 40 and 42 inches; either is worth a third more.
At $1.25 High grade novelties, such as are in vogue at the capital of fashion, "Paris," $1.50 worth in this assortment.

Black Goods.

Suitable suitings for service distinguish the offerings for the coming week. The new novelties are quite out of the ordinary.

Silks.

Success is never attained by luck. It was shrewd handling of the silk conditions on the part of our buyer that gave to us the command of the silk trade here. The last news from him is as follows:

Black Satin Rhadames, the #1 kind, 50c.
Black Satin Francalce Silk, 24-inch wide, 75c.
New figured Novelty Black Silks at $1.00.
7 1/2 grade, 27-inch, Punjab Silks at $1.00.
Exquisite two-tone Novelty Silks at 75c.
Very rich fancy figured Silks at $1.00.

Laces.

Those who buy first buy best, the assortments are broad-gauge, but the quantities are limited, the prices are only about knee high to the figures of the week past. Exceptional quotations are as follows:

15-inch Butter-color Laces, 5c. 6-inch Butter-color Laces, 10c. 4-inch Butter-color Laces, 5c.
Black Silk Chantilly Lace, 9 inches wide, 25c.
Black Silk Chantilly Lace, 5 inches wide, 30c.
Black Silk Chantilly Lace, 4 inches wide, 10c.
Colored Silk Laces, evening shades, 4 1/2 inches wide, at 10c.
Chiffon Laces, newest opera shades, 4 and 5 inches wide, the "half" prices are 15c to 30 cents.
French Chiffon, 48 inches wide, at 8c; colors black, cream, light blue, lavender, magenta, cardinal.
Black Lace Flouncing, 45 inches deep; a $2 sort will be sold at $1.

Trimmings.

Grandly complete assortments, of the very latest thoughts, as sent by Paris and New York. Some peculiar conditions have sent us trimmings that are as low as half the heretofore current prices for strictly top styles.

New designs in Beaded Edges in various widths at 15c, 10c, 12 1/2c, 15c, 20c, 25c, 30c and 50c.

Fur Trimmings.

Great buying gains for you here.
One-inch Honey Fur Edge at 15c.
Two-inch Honey Fur Edge at 25c.
Long Angora Fur White at 35c.
Fancy Red Edge Van Dyke Point Fur at $1.

Suits.

Ready to put on, rightly tailored; vigorous selling marks the every hour here. No wonder when Suits that make the styles for dress-makers are sold at about the cost of materials alone. There is a grand aristocratic air about these Suits that make them of double worth.

At $10.—Women's Suits. Black all-wool English Serge, reefer jacket style, splendidly made; worth easily $20 more.
At $12.—Women's Suits. Banockburn cheviot, silk lined, large pearl buttons, very stylish colors, easily worth $3.00 more.
At $12.—Women's Suits. English covert cloths in light and dark browns, large pearl buttons, reefer jacket, silk lined; easily worth $3.00 more.
At $15.—Women's Suits. Handsome covert cloths, trimmed with wide velvet collar, silk lined throughout; a really elegant suit; easily worth $3.00 more.
At $17.50.—Women's Suits. Beautiful mingled mixtures in Scotch Cheviots, handsome velvet collar, silk lined; a beautifully made suit, worth $25.00.

Women's Jackets.

Ten dollars is a very moderate price for Jackets as good as these. The cloths are brown coverts, black beaver and black English kersey; velvet collars, Baltic seal collars and braid embellishments prevail. There are, all told, a dozen sorts, every one after the most recent modes.

Fur Capes.

Our collection is the market-maker on Fur Cape prices in Los Angeles; no one else has a shop like this complete with the big-scale buying of a broad-gauge house like this; that's reasonable. 24-inch Japanese Seal Fur Cape, $12.
24-inch Japanese Seal Fur Cape, $12.
24-inch Japanese Seal Fur Cape, $12.
24-inch black Astrakhan Cape, $15.

Blankets.

Great values will mark this week's transactions and great transactions will mark this week's values. The prices quoted are on honest, worthy qualities, anything else never finds a place here.

At $5.—Blankets. 10-4 Mottled-Gray California Blanket, hand-knotted red border, extra weight, easily worth $7.50.

At $5.—Blankets. 11-4 White California Blankets, soft as wool can be, bound edges, a really worthy worth.

At $2.50.—Blankets. 11-4 Colored and White Blankets; specially good for this price, the best on the Coast we think.

At $2.50.—Comfortables. Made of Pure White Sheet Wadding, as soft and comfortable as an eiderdown, handsomely covered with silk-laine.

Linens.

A-word-and-a-price, a-dash-and-a-go, vigorous values here below.

At 50c Bleached and half-bleached Damasks for your table, that would ordinarily sell for a third more.
$2 Large dinner size or 1/2 Napkin, a dozen would have cost $3.00.
A Doz Turkish Bath Towels, 44 inches long, white as snow, or white, perhaps, 40c worth in every towel.
At 25c

Economy Basement.

Some tables full of fine China; 35c, 30c, and 25c are the ruling figures for each table; the wares displayed are about one-third what is charged for the same thing in the regular way. Other special features as follows:
Steel Knives and Forks, six of each the set $1.25.
6-piece decorated English Toilet set $1.75.
White China Gold-lined Cuspidors, 40c.
Decorated China Sauceplates, each 7c.
Special display of High Art China ware, which will point the way of holiday styles.

SHOES.

The great price differences that get into your pocket here now, are on goods that the squeezed counters and shelves can't hold; it's an unconditional price surrender, for a few days, till the stock resumes its normal size. Such a time as this, is a profit for you in shoe buying.

At $4.00 Women's shoes, made by Wright & Peters. Hand sewed. Welt sole. Button or lace as good as the best $5 shoe in the city.

At $2.50 Misses' shoes, made by Dugan & Hudson. French Dongola kid with Pat tip, a really elegant wearing shoe.

At $2.00 Youth's call shoes, Dugan & Hudson's famous iron clad brand. Comes in button or lace; sizes 11 to 14.

At $1.50 Children's cloth or kid top shoes patent tip, slipper, foxed, made by J. & T. Cousins; come in button only; sizes 5 to 11.
At 85c Infants' shoes; real French kid, patent tip hand turned. Easily worth $1.25.

Men's Wearables.

Your health and your purse are both considered in the underwear store right now, good next-to-the-skin wearables; cheats the doctors of many a bill, such healthy underwear, at these prices help us and hurt the doctor. Some doctors who buy their underwear here say it's cheaper than it is to doctor themselves.

At $1.00 The garment, men's underwear, extra weight, pure natural wool. Cut in a shape by way that fits. Worth 50 cents a garment more.

Order by Mail

Of us, that's the way for people to get these price benefits. Orders get the best of everything.

Boys' Clothing.

Never before have such marked values seen the light of day in this city. Those Suits for boys that we sell at $2.50 find more mothers that want 'em every day. Such making and such cloths don't often get in anything less than a $5 suit. More than a score of kinds go to make the assortment.

At $3.—Boys' Overcoats. Made with cape, brown and gray mixed cloths. All sizes for all boys; worth a dollar more.

At 20c.—Boys' Waists. An unusual lot that reached us in an unusual way; flannelettes, chevrons and percales, shirt or blouse styles.

Kodak Shots.

What you can see in our "big stores" if you look. Don't you think you better look? Great values in little things; a volley of price shots—bang!

At 25c.—Women's Hose. 100 doz. 4c grade, black Hose; this is shot No. 1.

At 50c.—Women's Hose. Pure natural wool, medicated, and contains no dye; easily worth 75c; shot No. 2.

At 25c.—Children's Hose. "Iron-clad," reckoned by wear these are worth 50c; shot No. 3.

At 15c.—Writing Paper. Box note paper, envelopes to match. Los Angeles printing dating on each sheet; shot No. 4.

At 65c.—Women's Vests. Jersey ribbed, cardinal red, a $1 quality; shot No. 5.

At 25c.—Handkerchiefs. Fine Swiss mesh, embroidered, worth 50c; shot No. 6.

At $1.50.—Parasols. Will shade sun or shed rain; 24-inch size; 25c would be about right; shot No. 7.

LONDON, Oct. 25.—(Special Correspondence.) The next great telescope which focuses the attention of contemporary astronomers and excites the wonder of the public in general will be a giant among its kind. It is now being widely discussed here as the Great Ten-foot Reflector, and will have a diameter of ten feet, a length of eighty feet, and weigh somewhere be-

There is another difficulty, however, which, with recent improvements in the reflector, has created a new and great opportunity for the latter. This is the desire to use the reflector in photography for instruments of larger and larger aperture and size. Great telescopes used for this purpose require an exactness of adjustment and require a mechanism to counteract the motion of the earth and keep them fixed in exactly the same relative position to the object being photographed, which is almost impossible to obtain with the great tubes and axes of the reflector. The great advantage of the reflectors of the future, however, is that they have no weight at all, mechanical speaking, because they will be floated in water. This, in itself, is a principle, due to the invention of Dr. Comstock, is impossible in the case of reflectors of the present type, and will naturally be at the bottom of the water, but with reflectors it shows every promise of availability in all enduring success. Consequently all the great astronomical work of the future will probably be tank tele-

SIR HOWARD GRUBB.

Sir Howard Grubb as a telescope maker occupies the highest rank. His whole life has been devoted to the study of telescopes and their mounting, and his works at Dublin have built among others the great Vienna telescope, the great Melbourne reflector, and many others of less note, including a twenty-eight inch refractor for the United States Government. His work is now completed, and a twenty-six inch photographic instrument for the same observatory which he has in hand. He is also engaged in the construction of a new observatory, and as a maker and authority on telescopes, is the first in Europe. He was the inventor of many of the devices used in the construction of the great telescope, and his adoption and indorsement of the flotation principle are consequently full evidence of its practicability. His name is also the subject of charges of and objection to this method, in a recent lecture at the Royal Institution, above pretty clearly, moreover, shown to be unfounded. His designs and designs for which he has been requested to make from three different sources, will be the subject of an interesting paper in celestial photography. The first was the form of the tube, but with the proper design sketched the tube will be depressible in perfect equilibrium within twenty feet of the horizon. If it is desired to depress it lower than this, I shall provide an arrangement of chains and counterpoises to that end.

ELECTRIC POWER TO SHIFT THE TELESCOPE BY.

"How much power will be required for its movement?"

"The power will be very small. One or two small gas engines will be used to charge storage coils in the daytime; the current from which will be ample to drive the telescope in the night.

"The force will be independent of the weight of the telescope, and dependent on the friction necessary to be overcome in the bearings. The weight will come into consideration only in the case of the water currents will not affect the steadiness, as they will subside in a few minutes after a wind.

"With the water currents, which are attached to the tube at the water line, and the chains carried on a polar axis, we have an equilibrium of the telescope, without any weight whatever on the bearings.

"How long will it take to complete it?"

"I should expect to finish it within four or five days from the date of commencing."

"What is your estimation of its total cost?"

"About $30,000."

"What are the great advantages do you look for from the use of the ten-foot reflector?"

WHAT IS HOPED FOR FROM THE NEW TELESCOPE.

"Generally speaking, all those advantages which attend the use of increased collecting power. During the last ten or fifteen years we have advanced some fifteen inches in the size of our refractors, that of the Yerkes Observatory being the largest of the next ten or fifteen years we may advance proportionately, and probably eventually attain a diameter of sixty inches. All that we can say is, that the larger the telescope the more we learn."

Was willing to retract his spitting, grammar, and philosophy. He was a good man; neither he nor his sister Elise, the two strong natures of the family, could quarrel. He was a good man, too, with elegance and ease. Among the private papers of his youth there is but one mathematical study of any importance; the rest are either trifles, or have some practical bearing on the problems of gunnery. When at Brienne his patron had said, "I cannot write or spell any languages," he had been content with the accomplishment and had none.

A SURE REMEDY.

(Texas Statesman.) Adams. So you have sworn off from drinking, eh?

Brown. Yes; I suffered a good deal during the first week, but after that I felt all right.

"What did you take to allay the craving for tobacco?"

"I smoked, smoking again. That allayed the craving right off."

The brain of an idiot contains much less than that of a person of average intelligence mental powers.

tunity for committing the crime, and in the direct evidence of the crime itself. But when the matter was placed before the grand jury, the only direct evidence he had been concerned in was his possession of the knife with which the homicide was committed. He acknowledged that the knife was his, and that it was he who had stained it with blood. He could not deny that the blood of a pet dog, upon whose broken leg he had performed a rude operation, was on the knife. He could not deny that in the city was brought to bear upon the subject, not one learned man was found who was not ready to swear that the blood was the blood of a man and not of a dog. In fact, this point was so established by the testimony of the criminology ever since criminology became scientific. The minds of the greatest scientists in the world were turned to this problem, but have always failed to find a solution for it. Then by means of the camera lucida, an attachment to his microscope, he cast them directly upon a sheet of white paper, from which, with infinite care, he cut a disc exactly the size of the original. The discs were later bound by means of compasses. He saw to it that his focus was absolutely the same while he hurried on this work, and he kept the camera lucida at a constant distance from the paper which bore exactly the same relation to each other in point of size that the original bore to the original. Then he took these disks of paper, pasted them on glass and used them as a lantern slide. This enabled him to project the image upon a screen magnified as many times as he chose. It would have been so simple for him, had he so desired, to make a photograph of the apparatus. He had made the smallest of these as large as the side of his study. He was contented both with the size and the accuracy. The largest one measured about two feet across. It was then possible for him to take a foot rule and measure the disk and space between the disks with the same accuracy with which he had measured the original.

weather as has prevailed for the past two years, when other crops fail. A correspondent from the Connecticut Agricultural Experiment Station writes from Indiana: "It states that the yield of artichokes in good soil ranges from 800 to 1000 bushels an acre, which seems a large yield. The tubers are left in the ground and turn back into the field after the frost has killed the stalks and allow them to root. The tubers from the ground are cleaned and turned into the market in spring when they are turned in to be fattened for the early market, while quantities, which are pitifully small, are made available for the winter and colts. The variety known as Water Jerusalem is the one used, and is said to resemble the cauliflower in its growth and cabbage. After the first planting there are always enough tubers left in the ground to produce a crop the following year."

It would have been so simple for him, had he so desired, to make a photograph of the apparatus. But he had made the smallest of these as large as the side of his study. He was contented with the camera lucida. The largest one measured about two feet across. It was then possible for him to take a foot rule and measure the disk and space between the disks, and then to take a weather as has prevailed for the past two years, when other crops fail. A correspondent from the Connecticut Agricultural Experiment Station writes from Indiana: "It states that the yield of artichokes in good soil ranges from 800 to 1000 bushels an acre, which seems a large yield. The tubers are left in the ground and turn back into the field after the frost has killed the stalks and allow them to root. The tubers from the ground are cleaned and turned into the market in spring when they are turned in to be fattened for the early market, while quantities, which are pitifully small, are made available for the winter and colts. The variety known as Water Jerusalem is the one used, and is said to resemble the cauliflower in its growth and cabbage. After the first planting there are always enough tubers left in the ground to produce a crop the following year."

and the ke, and by some method unknown to me, this determined boy captured Mr. Carr. He carried him home and put him in a cage, and there he is today shut out from the free woods and the happy sunlight, and the wheel goes round and round, as he runs within it in his effort to get away. I miss his bright eyes as I sit under the trees today, the sweep of his tail and the rush of his little feet, and wish that he had been wise enough to have kept out of danger, for when he might still have been free and happy as when I first met him under the trees.

YOUNG GIRLS' GOWNS.

GARMENTS SERVICEABLE FOR ALL HOURS.

School Gowns—An Extravagant Blouse—What Her Jacket Should Be—Full-dress Affair.

[From a Special Contributor.]

Of course, they are all as becoming as possible, but nevertheless there is a grown-up air about the new costumes for young girls this season.

Many young jackets and capes are almost exact imitations of their full-grown relatives. And though school gowns are still moderately plain, as wise school ma'ams exact they should be, young girls' carriage and promenade toilettes are works of art. There are monster velvet dresses, and real lace herbas, and chiffon waists, and passementerie, and choux, and every here and there a crinoline skirt. Indeed, such extravagance for young children was never seen before.

SOME SERVICEABLE SCHOOL GOWNS.

First in the list of winter things to be considered for the maid of 16, come school gowns, which should be of simple make and material. Scotch tweed, plain, checked, or speckled like a bird's egg, in any of the sunset or moorland tints now shown, is a stylish and wearable stuff for one frock. Another might be made of French poplin, or the less expensive and equally effective alpaca, which likewise neatly shades the dust and creases with difficulty. And a third could even take a hint from the mother's wardrobe, in fact, no less than a smart little black silk, moderately flared and stiffened, and worn with a dainty silk or pongee blouse. Of this last garment there are many models, blouses for comfort and blouses for discomfort—so it would seem.

AN EXTRAVAGANT BLOUSE.

One lately seen on Fifth avenue was of surah in cerise red, that youngest of reds. In this case the huge sleeves were ballooned with crinoline, and then mounted by a butterfly effect, the whole being formed by long, unshaped lengths of the silk. A narrow belt of dead gold finished the round, gathered waist line; and the collar, chiffroned with side and back rosettes, was banded to quite stiff heights. This very precocious timepiece was for a young lady of 16, and was, as the affable clerk remarked, a "dear thing," though in more senses than one.

fronty robin's-egg blue inspired approval. The round, shirred yoke of this comfortable blouse, as well as the long cuff effects of the loose bishop sleeves, was of the same shade. This shirring continued to the top of the unstiffened, moderately high collar, and an easy lining in warm flannel added to the charm of the whole.

WHAT HER JACKET SHOULD BE.

After school frocks comes her street jacket, which should always be a serious consideration.

An effective, as well as a comfortable and sensible coat, might be copied from the accompanying sketch, which is of light blouson cloth and seal-brown velvet. The dress frock that crosses the pointed crepe, and holds the jacket at the waist, are of brown silk galleon, over large pearl buttons. The front fastenings are stiffened.

A FULL DRESS AFFAIR.

The very stunning full dress toilette seen in the picture was also taken from a gown in the same wardrobe. This very elegant, yet dashing little gown, was adorably becoming to the brown-haired Parisienne, with her demure gray eyes. But it would also serve as a good design for any slight, well-carried type. Its materials were mouse-colored cloth, hunters' green velvet, lizard passementerie and figured silk, in which a pallid salmon tone prevailed.

The evening costume on the tall girl, with her straight, ink-black hair arranged in the latest mode, was a new relation of the two preceding confections. That is to say, it was a French inspiration—none but the French, after all, can so combine simplicity with air—but it was of that very durable and English stuff, linen.

Accorded pleated chiffon, butter-white like the dress, composed the pointed entreeux of the full circular skirt. The body bodice, puffy sleeves and little hip puffers are also of the same, the dark garniture being of velvet ribbon in a burnt orange tint.

A GOWN FOR NOONTIME.

The small lady besides this very fine young person wears an afternoon frock of mixed wool, in colors green, bronze, red and blue, woven in a rich Persian pattern. The rever effects, back and front, of the

A SETTE OF ODDE VOLUMES OF TODAY.

A Woman Who Makes Her Own Books After Her Own Ideas, though She is not an Author.

[From a Special Contributor.]

I know a lovely dark-eyed girl whose position in life gives her access to the rarest, but the unchallenged leisure of the lilies of the field, who has taken unto herself, and finds much pleasure in, one of the most laborious yet charming pursuits. She is an omnivorous reader, and has become in some sense a collector or rather a maker of rare books. Not that she is literary; she never wrote a line for publication in her life, but she has a considerable collection now of old volumes, some bound, interleaved, illustrated by means of photographs and prints by her own hands, and others that are entirely her work from cover to cover.

One of these productions is a collection of sea songs, beginning with Shelley's: "I see the deep's untampered floor," and closing with Rossetti's, "Come down with me, my love, now."

These, Studentia, as we will call her, has clipped apart, interleaved with photographs and prints, and has bound in a shimmering, blue-green lizard skin with title and lettering of silver.

The most charming of Studentia's books, however, are those which she makes entirely for herself.

She is, you must know, passionately fond of poetry, and reads everything going, in rhyme, or carol, or song, and she has moved to offer to a patient public, to the bright poetic jetsam and foam of the Sunday newspapers. Occasionally she finds a little gem, a sonnet, a stanza, a bit that is plainly by an unpracticed hand, but which has merits of pure loveliness; and then she cuts it out.

Some of these are poems that she had quite an accumulation of these verses, running from grave to gay, and on all sorts of subjects. She hardly knew what to do with them. A scrapbook was not to be thought of, since many of the verses were on poor paper and in worse type, and she felt sure her discoveries were worthy of, and would grace, a better setting.

She has a nice tact for lettering (does it with a number one red sable quill, in India ink, or carmine, so as not to get on art store as many sheets of fine, thick paper, assorted in the very faintest tints of cream, amber, pink, azure, violet, etc., as she has little poems on these she lettered the verses, adorning by her fancy—and the text—suggested.

One poem of a devotional character is done on cream-colored paper, and is begun with an illuminated initial which, with an illuminated border makes it look like a page out of an old missal. Another has a margin of wild rose leaves, and is done in blue. Some verses de societe have exquisitely etched figures in pen and ink, and the whole is done in a very artistic and charming way.

On the cover of cream-colored skin she has lettered the title in red.

A HANDFUL OF FIGS—FLUCKED FROM THISTLES.

Above and below this runs a band of highly conventionalized figs and thistles, wrought in heavily-stuffed bullion embroidery, and the little volume, dainty and complete in all its details, is ready for use.

There is no place; when used in connection with one, any accompaniment can be supplied; the pupils keeping time with the bells.

The peculiar value of the musical bells lies in the necessity for sharp, energetic action at the end of each movement to produce a sound, which everyone using them will want to get, thus forcibly exercising the muscles brought into action.

To prove this—with the bell in the right hand, the left hand is raised, and the left hand, turning the bell outward forcibly to make it ring and note the hardening of the muscles.

In exercise, the left hand is raised, and the left hand, turning the bell outward forcibly to make it ring and note the hardening of the muscles.

A whistle blow at the landing; before long came the steady tramp, tramp of many feet, and soldiers began to pour in at the company stations.

Soon the gate clicked, and a tall man walked up the path, and in at the front door. His broad-brimmed hat hung in tatters over his brow, his clothes were sewed over with patches of white canvas in every direction that could be imagined; his torn shoes scarcely covered his feet, but a bright smile illumined his sun-burned and blistered face. He took me into his arms, and the world vanished quite away for awhile. THE WAR! WAR WAS OVER, and the warrior had reached home. E. M.

HIS BLACK-LIST.

The President Keeps a Record of Friends and Foes

In His Official Scrap-book—A Fearful and Wonderful Affair.

Things that Interest Him Relating to Legislation and Office-seeking are Clipped and Pasted for Reference.

A Clipping That Spilled a Man for Office—Scraped About Mrs. Cleveland and the Babies—Gossip From Washington.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 2.—(Special Correspondence.) The President reads the daily newspapers usually by proxy. Some few of them are brought to him—the Washington papers, of course and the New York papers, but most of his newspaper reading is done by one of the executive clerks of his official household. So the comment which is made on his failure to come to Mr. Hill's assistance in New York, and the abuse which will follow if the Democrats lose New York will reach him at second hand, if at all. The President's newspaper extracts, like his mail, reach him after the sifting process which eliminates all that it is not necessary that he should see. First, the papers pass through the hands of Col. Crook, who reads them and marks them carefully. Then the principal journals go to the private secretary's room, where Mr. Thurber determines whether a story which Col. Crook has marked as of interest is sufficiently important to be called to the President's personal attention. Humiliating as it may be to the editor who proudly sends his editorial utterance marked with blue pencil to the White House, it must be said that comparatively few of the marked paragraphs get past Mr. Thurber. After they have been inspected by him, the papers are taken back to Col. Crook and carefully clipped. The scraps are assorted, and one of the colored messengers pastes them in the big black scrap books, which decorate a shelf in Col. Crook's office. There are a dozen of these books, and they are constantly being filled and revised. One book is devoted to purely political matters; another to Indian questions; another to financial questions; another to judicial matters, and finally there is a book which contains all the personal paragraphs about Mr. and Mrs. Cleveland and the babies. This personal scrapbook is the most interesting of all. If Mr. Cleveland ever looks over its pages he must be amused at the collection of contradictions which it contains. Here, under faring headlines, is told the story about the dreadful "operation," which was performed on Mr. Cleveland aboard Mr. Benedict's yacht. Directly below this story is the denial of it. Then there is gossip about the prospect of a White House baby, and all the newspaper congratulations which followed the baby's arrival. There are stories from Buzzard's Bay, and stories from New York. Not all the personal gossip about the President is recorded here, because there is not room for it. But there is a great deal of this gossip, most of which probably has never reached the President's eye.

The purpose that this scrapbook serves, however, is to give the President a ready reference to those who have published pleasant things and unpleasant things about him. In fact, the chief value of the scrap collection is as a "black list." Its usefulness was demonstrated during the early part of the present administration, when an applicant for appointment from the South was contradicted with extracts from the editorial columns of his paper, abusing Mr. Cleveland roundly. He did not receive the appointment which he sought.

During the first Cleveland administration, Private Secretary Lamont did all of the exchange reading. Before his time there had been an official reader of the newspapers, but Mr. Lamont was too much interested in newspaper work to be willing to do his reading by proxy. He would not trust it to any one. Mr. Bradford, his successor, was a good newspaper man, but he was satisfied to have the greater part of his reading done for him, and, under the first Cleveland administration, Mr. Montgomery of the telegraph-room did the newspaper clipping. Now the work has been transferred to Col. Crook. But Mr. Lamont still keeps a scrap-book on the leading papers, and particularly those which are published in New York State. The President goes most of his information about what is going on in New York from Mr. Lamont. No one places a greater value on newspaper comment than the present Secretary of War.

It is a singular fact, though, that no one is less communicative to newspaper men than Mr. Lamont, and few Presidents have been less considerate of newspaper correspondents than Mr. Cleveland. With the incoming of the Cleveland family, the White House became a closed book to the newspapers. Where the correspondents of the leading newspapers were free under other administrations to come and go in the President's offices, as they would in any public place, there are bars and ceremonies to be observed now in reaching even one of the clerks of the Executive Mansion. A result of this policy is seen in the very small number of newspaper correspondents gathered at the White House these days. There is so little satisfaction in going there for information that the correspondents trust to the press associations to cover the routine news, and hardly ever attempt to obtain any of the personal gossip which is always such an interesting feature of Washington correspondence. Presidents have been anxious, apparently, to gain the good will of newspaper representatives. Mr. Cleveland seems to be entirely indifferent to this. Still, his friends say he is not entirely impervious to newspaper criticism. There are occasionally paragraphs in the papers which try his temper severely.

Mr. Cleveland is not a patron of the newspaper-clipping bureaus, except on special occasions. Sometimes, when a very important question is under discussion, he has his clippings from all of the papers on that particular subject sent to him. As a rule, he is satisfied with his own exchange list. It is not very large, and the President is a subscriber to very few papers. Many publishers send their papers to the White House regularly, possibly with the hope that the President will read them, and be guided by their suggestions. Many of the departments are subscribers to the press clippings, and many of them keep scrap-books. The Navy Department, for example, keeps a very complete collection of foreign papers and magazines, and clips from domestic publications everything that might be valuable for reference about our own or foreign navies. Secretary Hoke Smith is a subscriber to press clippings, both on his own account and on behalf of the Interior Department. The Fish Commissioner takes a regular service, and preserves all of the clippings on pieces of manila paper of uniform size, which are assorted and bound together according to subjects, arranged in chronological order. The Fish Commissioner has a very valuable collection of newspaper clippings. Many public men buy newspaper scraps about themselves, and some of them specify, in placing an order, that the clippings shall be of a complimentary character. That is, they wish to have only the complimentary paragraphs sent to them. They do not see themselves as all others see them. At least, many of the committee of Congress are subscribers to these bureaus, and they make up scrap-books on financial and economic questions, which are useful in obtaining information for legislation.

A great deal of the matter which goes into the Congressional Record every year comes from these scrap-books, and much of it is not credited to the original author.

One of the uses of the press clipping service is to furnish suggestions to business men as to the popular demand for this or that article, and out of the service sent to a business man in Washington not long ago grew an idea which has caused a great deal of controversy in newspapers all over the country. It is betraying a trade secret to tell of it, but the joke on the public is too good to keep. Some Mulholland of journalism started not long ago a story that when John McCullough, the actor, was confined in a madhouse, a graphophone was placed in his cell and a record of his ravings was made. The result was described in such a blood-curdling way that it aroused an immediate desire to hear McCullough's ravings. When the mendacious paragraph had been in circulation for a short time, copies of it began to pour in on the graphophone people here and following them came orders from all parts of the country from people who had "graphophone parlors" or places where the machines were on exhibition for cylinders with the "ravings." At first the graphophone people sent word to the inquirers that there was no such record in existence. But presently the pressure became too great. The country demanded the ravings of McCullough with no uncertain voice. There was no alternative. The graphophone people must furnish ravings as they came.

So a new vocation was created. A "raver" was employed to turn out cylinders according to the demand. The first of these cylinders were not very artistic, but they created a sensation and the demand redoubled. Then other ravers were tried and, finally, a man was employed who had heard McCullough and who was a pretty good mimic. This man is now turning out cylinders by wholesale and people are listening to the reproduction of his voice have sworn that it could be no other than McCullough's. When I was in the city of St. Louis recently people were standing ten deep in front of the graphophone waiting their turn to hear the "ravings." Now some friends of the dead actor have taken the matter up and through some of the Western papers they are trying to work up public sentiment against this "horrible exhibition" of a "depraved taste." There is no doubt in any part of the country that the "ravings" reproduced on the graphophone are really those of McCullough's; whereas no record of McCullough's voice, so far as is known, is in existence. Certainly the "ravings" were never recorded in the madhouse where McCullough ended his life. The extent to which the public will permit itself to be gulled in this manner is illustrated in this graphophone business. A few years ago a newspaper correspondent now living in Washington, was in a room in the city of St. Louis, where a "graphophone parlor" invited him to read an extract from one of John G. Carlisle's speeches to the machine. The record was taken. A year later, the correspondent was again in Louisville. He found the cylinder which he had made on public exhibition as a record of the voice of John G. Carlisle delivering a speech on the tariff. People were paying 5 cents a piece to hear Mr. Carlisle's voice, and they thought that they were hearing it. There is a cylinder in existence containing a message sent by Mr. Gladstone to the American people through Mr. Edison. Most of the graphophone exhibitions have Mr. Gladstone's message on tap. A few days ago a man walked into the graphophone headquarters there and said: "I was listening to that Gladstone cylinder down stairs, and I understand for the first time where that man gets his wonderful control over the people. It is in his voice." The voice to which the enthusiast had been listening was that of an employee of the graphophone company, who was sitting in the adjoining room. Truly, as Barnum said, the American people like to be fooled.

(Texas Sittings.) Mr. Isaacs. I want to see you about some legacies. My viceroy died and made two testaments. The first, his lawyer. You mean he made two wills or testaments, and then died. "Choose so. In von of dose wills he leaves me $5000 and in dot oder vill he leaves $2500." "Which testament did he make first?" "In dot oder testament he leave me $5000, but I want dot vill to be propated." "I don't blame you, Isaac, but this is the first time in my experience that an orthodox Jew preferred the New Testament to the Old."

WOODLAWN.

This is the Winner Among the 300 Names Suggested.

The Cash Prize Offered for the Best and Most Appropriate Name is to be Divided Between Two Ladies.

This is the name, selected from over three hundred, which seems to the owners, Potter & West, to be the most appropriate in every respect for the tract. It neither flatters nor deceives; it is quiet and unassuming word, yet is pleasing to the ear and has the true ring to all lovers of nature. The property is simply a tract of land surrounded by graceful old poplars, and containing within its bounds an area of bearing orange trees, and also deciduous fruits at regular intervals. This fact suggests the first part of our name, gradually the work of development and improvement commenced. The property was planted, streets laid out, and lots staked off. Thirty-six streets were laid out, and the tract was not only improved, but the main street frontage is destined to become one of the prettiest short stretches in the city, as will be acknowledged by all who have seen it. Jefferson street is one of these old, secluded places that many seek to find, conveying an air of contentment that falls to the lot of but few. The soil is of the best, as is evidenced by the beautiful lawn that each home possesses. It is an ideal locality, and we think the best ideal name. It is very gratifying to the owners to receive such complimentary notices, which have far exceeded our expectations, and we wish to thank all for their contributions, and for the kind words they have spoken of our tract.

We have posted a list of the names sent in to our office for the benefit of all who may wish to see them. One-half price of the lot is divided between the two successful competitors, Mrs. B. L. Keep and Mrs. D. W. Marshall. Further announcements of our tract will appear from time to time in the newspapers, and maps, information, etc., can be obtained at our office, No. 128 West Fifth street, or at our branch office on the tract. The Throop tract is no more, but Woodlawn is the coming home section of the future.

THE MIGHTY HEALER.

Free Public Demonstration by the Boy Phenomenon,

At the Los Angeles Theater, Tuesday Night, November 3.

Admission Free—Seats Free—Treatment Free.

The Crippled, Deaf, Blind and Lame Will Be Treated Free Upon the Stage.

Owing to the fact that there are many poor and worthy people who desire treatment at the hands of the Boy Phenomenon, and are unable to pay for the same, and whose means would not permit them to attend the recent demonstration at Mr. Temple's house, in response to many requests, to give one more demonstration of his God-given power at the Los Angeles Theater.

TUESDAY NIGHT, NOVEMBER 3.

The management has secured a great concession from the manager of the theater in having the admission free abolished, and is able to announce that there will be no charge for admission or for any seat in the house.

This demonstration will be the last given by the Boy Phenomenon in Los Angeles, and all who are afflicted and are unable to pay for treatment should not miss this opportunity of being cured by his wonderful hands. He will treat as many on the stage as possible, so master what their condition they will be treated absolutely free. Preference will be given the deaf and blind, and the paralytic and rheumatic who have been on crutches for years.

All who are afflicted, those interested in the work, or skeptical regarding the wonderful power of animal magnetism possessed by the Boy Phenomenon are invited to attend the demonstration and witness the miraculous curing of the paralyzed, rheumatic, blind and deaf by the laying on of hands. He not only treats the blind, lame and crippled, but all diseases quickly yield to his strange power. Catarrh, indigestion, consumption, chronic bronchitis, chronic diarrhoea, neuralgia, nervous prostration, diabetes, Bright's disease, epilepsy or fits, tumors in all conditions, diseases of a delicate nature, diseased bones, dropsy, deafness, heart disease, bladder disorders, hemorrhoids or piles, chronic rheumatism, obstinate constipation, disorders of women, catarrh of eyes, cancer, sciatica, paralysis, neuralgia, liver complaint, kidney troubles, scrofula, gravel, breast disorders, impotency, and, in fact, all diseases yield to animal magnetism in the hands of this phenomenon. Physicians and all who are able to pay for treatment may come to Dr. Temple's private parlors at the Hollenbeck Hotel, entrance at No. 215 S. Second street, rooms 22 to 23, where he will remain until December 1. His office hours are from 10 o'clock every day except Sunday. Consultation, examination and advice free. All diseases diagnosed without questions by Prof. W. Fletcher Hall, the world's most eminent sight diagnostician.
